Weather

Fresh monsoon, fine weather. The maximum temperature yesterday was 68.4 and the minimum 38.5, the figures for the corresponding day last year being 62.1 and 53.2.

8-8 PROGRAM OF JAPAN TO GO DESPITE FALL IN FUNDS

Takahashi Tells Japan's Ministers They Must Pare To Quick

REVENUES DROP

Less Money Next Year But Big Battleship Building Goes On

(Special To The China Press)

Tokio, Nov. 11.—The gloomy outlook of Japan's national finances were stressed today by Viscount Takahashi, Minister of finance in announcing the outlines of the year's budget. The figures he gave out represent a slash of Yen 200 million from the estimates prepared by Government departments and Yen 100 million below the current budget.

The budget for the coming year is Yen 1,463 million as compared with Yen 1,562 million for the present year.

Minister Takahashi told the cabinet that the state of the revenues call for drastic curtailment. Revenues for the current year has yielded Yen 30 million less than the estimates with a probable drop of 70 millions more for this year. He explained that the reductions could be made by spreading enterprises over a greater number of years.

He made the significant statement that the Navy Department's "eight-eight" program was not to be interfered with by this arrangement but would continue on schedule.

Minister Takahashi gave no details of the departmental appropriations, but it is understood that the Navy suffered most, being cut from Yen 479 million to Yen 408 million. This statement coupled with the assurances of the minister regarding the "eight-eight" program being carried through leads to the belief that certain reserve funds will be drawn upon to meet the expense of this battleship building plan.

Takahashi's announcement followed a four-day consderaton of the budget by the Cabinet. The department heads fought stoutly but futilely to hold off the Finance Minister's pruning knife. Answering their pleas, Takahashi explained that the money smply was not to be found, the revenues won't yield enough to meet the demands of the varous govrnment programs.

Takahashi declared that further declines in revenues are expected year after next due to the depression and the drying up of the nation's fiscal sources. The general character of the budget now is fixed and only minor changes will be made in it before it is handed to the Diet when the session opens on Christmas Eve.

Kanakas Barred By Australia Even For Cotton Field Test

(Reuter's Service)

Melbourne, Nov. 10.—The Minister of Home Territories, Mr. Alexander Poynton, declares that permission will not be granted for the employment of Kanakas in the Northern Territory on the cotton growing scheme, but otherwise the report, cabled earlier, is correct.

No Chivalry Now In War Declares Prest. Harding

(Reuter's Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—President Harding in his address at the burial of the Unknown Warrior here today denounced modern warfare as cruel. It was no longer a conflict on chivalry or a test of militant manhood. He eloquently contended that those in authority ought to exhaust every conceivable effort before asking the manhood of any kingdom, empire or republic to make the supreme sacrifice. President Harding passionately asserted that there must be—there shall be—the commanding voice of conscious civilisation against armed warfare.

QUINTUPLE PACT IS SUGGESTED BY THE CHINA ASSN.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 10.—At the annual dinner of the China Association last night, Mr. F. Anderson, presiding, recalled the Association's suggestion made last June, that the terms of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty should be embodied in a declaration and subscribed to by the four powers forming the Consortium and China might be invited to subscribe.

He said that, if such a declaration were signed, there would be a feeling of relief throughout the civilised world and Japan would take a wise farseeing course if she intimated that she had decided to return Kiaochao and the whole of Shantung, including the railway, to China unconditionally upon payment of reasonable compensation.

Given amicable relations with China, Japan from an economic point of view, had the ball at her feet in the Far East. She was the only nation Europe and America had to fear there commercially but, if the British and Americans were beaten fairly and squarely by their Japanese rivals in trade, there would be no ill-feeling.

Sir Philip Lloyd Greame said that they wanted to see China buying and selling in every market in the world. He was glad to say that in spite of difficulties there had been a great demand for Chinese products not only in Europe but also in America and he hoped that in the better times that were coming, China and those trading with China would not forget all Britain had done to bring about that state of things.

Joffre Is Off On Tour To Far East

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Nov. 10.—Marshal Joffre will sail tomorrow from Marseilles on the liner Porthos, for Singapore. He bears the French Government's congratulations to the Far Eastern Governments which took part in the victory of the Allies.

Paris, Nov. 10.—Marshal Joffre left this afternoon for Marseilles on his way to the East. He was met at the station by the Japanese Ambassador and the Siamese and Chinese Ministers, who bade him farewell.

Foreigners And Chinese Join In Celebration Of Armistice Anniversary

Special Religious Services, Meetings And Processions Held In Observance Of Day; Telegrams Sent To Washington

With a blaze of flags of all the Allied nations, with special church services, with meetings, parades and the despatching of telegrams to Washington expressing hope for the success of the Disarmament Conference, Shanghai, foreign and Chinese, observed Armistice Day yesterday.

In the morning there was an impressive memorial service at Holy Trinity Cathedral and British bluejackets marched to the Race Course where they paraded. At noon a large gathering at the Shanghai Club observed the occasion with appropriate ceremonies. In the afternoon there were meetings of various Chinese organisations in celebration of the Armistice anniversary and of the opening of the Washington Conference—these also occurring in the evening.

Last night members of the United Services Association and of the French veterans' organisation had a dinner followed by a dance at the Cercle Sportif Francais and there was a ball of pretentious proportions at the Shanghai Club.

CATHEDRAL IS FILLED

The services at the Cathedral yesterday morning were under the auspices of the United Services Association. In order to accommodate the congregation all of the pews had been removed and the big building was completely filled with the standing throng. The special service was read by Dean Symons. Bishop White read the lesson and choir and congregation joined in the hymns and in the singing of Kipling's "Recessional." Immediately following the rendering of the latter a two-minutes' silence was observed, then followed the sounding of the "Last Post," after which the Rev. W. Robbins, chaplain of the United Services Association, in a stirring sermon emphasised the necessity for perpetuating the ideal for which the War was fought. The full text of Mr. Robbins' address will be found in a succeeding column.

Sir Everard Fraser, British Consul-General, and his staff, with representatives of the United Services Association—including Colonel R. Marr Johnson, Colonel Reader Harris, Major Hugh Martin and Captain T. McMichael—occupied specially reserved space in the chancel, as did also the relatives of men who fell during the world conflict.

INAUGURAL MEETING

Another meeting of the morning was that held at the Martyrs' Memorial Hall for the purpose of inaugurating the "All China People's Diplomatic Federation." Delegates from 118 Chinese organisations were in attendance and Dr. T. H. Lee, of Fuhtan University, occupied the chair, as provisional chairman. In his address he drew attention to the significance of the day and expressed hope for the realisation of China's claims at the Washington conference. The meeting drafted two telegrams for dispatch to President Harding and to the delegates to the Conference, the text of which follows:

"Pacific Conference Washington—Hearty congratulations and wishes success this federation composed one hundred eighteen organisations representing all provinces ardently prays justice solution Pacific problems for world peace All China Peoples Diplomatic Federation.

"President Harding Washington—China united deeply appreciates your efforts secure world peace. Ardently prays just solution Pacific problems All China Peoples Diplomatic Federation."

CELEBRATE AT CLUB

The Shanghai Club were also to the fore in celebrating Armistice Day. Soon after noon the Club was crowded and as the clock neared 12:30 p.m. there

BRADBURY STIRS FRENCH WRATH BY HIS REPORT

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 10.—Sir John Bradbury's report on the Wiesbaden Agreement may be a fresh source of Anglo-French estrangement, according to Reuter's Paris correspondent.

The newspapers generally regret its publication as inopportune at the very moment that the Reparations Commission is visiting Berlin.

Some papers, notably the Figaro, express surprise that the British Government should try to profit by the absence of M. Briand to raise matters on which France and Britain disagreed, thus needlessly alarming public opinion.

New York, Nov. 10.—A reduction is announced of 10 percent in the wages of all railways in the North Eastern portion of the United States which affects a million men.

Pomp And Panoply To Double Dutch Crown's Revenue

(Reuter's Service)

The Hague, Nov. 10.—The Second Chamber today agreed to the Government's proposal to double the crown revenue which is now 600,000 florins. The increase is justified by the necessity of receiving the heads of foreign States in greater pomp.

Daylight Bandits Stop Funeral; And Steal The Coffin

HIGHWAY robbery in Shanghai has reached a high point which was never even approximated by Mr. Richard Turpin or the band of experts gathered together by the late Mr. J. James.

On Thursday afternoon, while the sun was still hours away from the horizon, a funeral procession passed along Thibet Road, conducting the body of the infant son of the daughter of Bang Tsok-ching from Nantao to a resting place in Chapei.

As the cortege neared the corner of Haining Road it was suddenly beset by a gang of beggars and loafers. The coolie bearers and the mourners were scattered and the attacking party seized the coffin and dashed away.

Report of the matter was [illegible] to West Hongkew police [illegible] by Bang Tsok-chin. The affair having happened in Chinese territory, he was advised to seek the assistance of the Chapei police.

KING GEORGE IN SYMPATHY WITH HARDING'S PLAN

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 10.—The King's Speech at the prorogation of Parliament outlined the good progress made towards the solution of the most critical problems of home and foreign affairs. His Majesty was happy to know that the Dominions, Indian and British representatives were in close accord on all issues of foreign policy discussed. It was unanimously decided that the naval strength of the Empire should equal that of any other power.

The steps, taken by the President of the United States, to promote reduction of expenditure on armaments, commanded the fullest sympathy of the Government. His Majesty earnestly hoped that the Labor Conference would be crowned with success in spite of the unexampled depression of trade.

The speech anticipated that the current budget would not show a deficit although the estimated surplus for the reduction of debt would not be realised. His Majesty appealed to all parites in Ireland to display goodwill in order to end the present anxiety and achieve enduring peace.

With regard to unemployment which was aggravated by the coal strike, His Majesty said that he looked more to co-operation between employers and operatives than to Acts of Parliament for the restoration of trade prosperity.

Root Sees End Of Bolshevist Days

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Nov. 11.—Mr. Elihu Root in a statement here today urging the support of Russian exiles, expressed the opinion that the Bolshevik terror was steadily drawing towards its downfall.

PARLIAMENT PROROGUED

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Parliament was prorogued today to January 30.

TRADE MISSION FROM CHITA HERE ON WAY TO U.S.

The special commercial delegation to America of the Far Eastern Republic arrived in Shanghai last night with their staff from Peking en route to Washington. Mr. A. A. Yasikoff, an engineer and a well-known authority on Far Eastern problems, is at the head of the delegation. The other members are Mr. B. E. Skvirsky, former Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Far Eastern Republic, and Mr. P. N. Karavaieff, a journalist and authority on economic questions of the Far East. They have stopped at the Astor House Hotel and leave today on the Empress of Asia for the United States.

In an interview with a representative of THE CHINA PRESS Mr. Yasikoff gave the following statement about the aims and objects of the delegation:

"The despatch of a special commercial delegation to America by the Government of the Far Eastern Republic is the realisation of the intentions of the people and the Government, which intentions have already been expressed by the Constituent Assembly at the beginning of this year.

"The Constituent Assembly having proclaimed the independence of the Far Eastern Republic and the fundamental principles of the democratic Constitution of the Republic, has appealed to the Governments of the United States, Great Britain, France, Japan and China asking them to establish normal and friendly relations with the Far Eastern Republic, and was ready to send its delegations to some of these countries to further the establishment of such relations.

"For many reasons the Government had to postpone the despatch of its delegations.

"We are now in a position to send our delegation to the United States. The despatch of a delegation to America is quite natural, as the Russian Far East has for many years been in commercial intercourse with the United States and American machinery and American implements have been used in our industry and agriculture.

"Furthermore, having overthrown the old despotic monarchic rule and having adopted a democratic form of Government, the Far Eastern Republic has naturally turned to the great American Republic.

"To explain to the Government and to the people of America the real nature of our State organisation, to disperse the misunderstandings and prejudicies created as a result of the unfavorable attitude of the Republic, the Russian and foreign reactionaries and adherers to monarchism, to inform the Government and the financial circles of America of the natural resources of the country and to invite foreign capital to participate in the development of those resources—these are among the problems with which the delegation will be occupied in America."

Big 'Tim' Former Legislator Guilty Of Robbery Plot

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Chicago, Nov. 9.—"Big 'Tim'" Murphy, union leader, former state representative, and an alleged gunman; Vicento Cosmano, a union president, and two others have been convicted of plotting a $360,000 mail robbery at Dearborn station.

ADML. KATO SAYS JAPAN HAS NO BIG NAVY PLAN BUT ONLY PROTECTION

Declares Himself Ready To Scrap His Pet "Eight-Eight" Plan If Washington Sets Low Limit On Armaments—Japan Is No Contender In Navies He Reiterates

OUR NAVY NOT SO BIG SAYS KATO

Must Defend Country Is His Claim When Justifying "Eight-Eight" Program To Representative Of Washington Press

BY FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE
(Trans-Pacific Public Ledger—China Press Exclusive Service)

WASHINGTON, November 10.—Admiral Baron Kato, head of the Japanese delegation to the Disarmament Conference, made the most remarkable statement regarding Japan's naval policy that has yet emanated from any quarter.

Speaking, as he said, entirely frankly, in response to questions levelled at him point blank and without notice, Kato categorically denied the allegations made today by a New York newspaper that Japan opposed any reduction in armaments.

Kato affirmed that Japan is ready to cut down her "eight-eight" program in agreement with other powers at Washington, "provided the safety of Japan is assured."

Kato then stated in most positive terms that Japan never dreamed of building a fleet to equal or exceed those of Britain or the United States. He explained that the plans of Japan thus far adopted were far inferior to those in course of execution in Great Britain and the United States.

Then Kato's interrogators asked him why it was that Japan lacking the justification for creating a great sea power such as Britain and America could plead, was creating such an enormous sea power and such a mighty fleet.

Admiral Kato replied: "I myself don't think that Japan's navy is a great navy. Every country must have forces wherewith to defend herself. The degree of force to be maintaind depends on many factors. Among them are internal and other conditions and relations with other nations. Japan is an insular power like Great Britain. Therefore should there exist a nation that intends to attack Japan, only our naval force would be able to defend our country.

Kato also said that Japan expected America to come forward with limitation proposals at the conference.

NO SECRET PACT

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 10.—In the House of Commons today Major Barnes asked whether there was any military or naval agreement, understanding or arrangement of any sort between Britain and Japan not arising out of the terms of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance but supplemental thereto. Mr. Lloyd George replied in the negative.

MOURN FOR HARA

(Eastern News Agency)

Washington, Nov. 9.—A memorial service for the late Premier of Japan, Mr. Takashi Hara, was conducted at the Japanese Embassy here today at 11 a.m. by the Japanese delegation to the Pacific conference and press representatives, in the course of which expressions of condolence as well as memorial addresses were delivered by Admiral Baron Kato, Prince Tokugawa, Baron Shidehara and Mr. Yokota, the President of the Bureau of Legislation.

"It is wrong to criticize the late Mr. Hara only as a man of practicality and not one of ideals", said Mr. Yokota, "When I paid a farewell visit to the late Premier the night before I left for the United States, he told me in effect that he felt as if the God had given His gospel message to President Harding to convene the forthcoming Disarmament Conference with the object of completing justice and humanity for the sake of the happiness of mankind.

"This auspicious Conference should by all means be crowned with success, Mr. Hara went on to state, and if the Powers, ridden by their empirical ego, should bring the Conference to a failure, the God, feeling indignant at the insincerity and unfaithfulness of the modern mankind, would administer baptism of another war disaster. Judging from this opinion, it will be perceived that the late Mr. Hara was not only a pacifist but an idealist and that how ardently he was hungry for the success of the Disarmament Conference."

CHINA IS NERVOUS
BY JABIN HSU
(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Nov. 10.—On the eve of the opening of the disarmament conference, an atmosphere of international suspicion prevails. Opinion here is that the success of the conference depends on on whether or not this uneasiness is allayed.

The delegates are nervously awaiting the leadership of America in outlining the purpose of the meeting. The Senate has adopted a resolution recommending that full publicity be given the parleys.

Shanghai's representatives here, David Yui and Mon Ling-chiang, have arrived as volunteers to present the people's case. Two other Shanghai men, Thomas F. Millard and J. B. Powell are distributing pamphlets outlining their views. Wen Shih Sitsing, Nanking commissioner, is on a lecture tour throughout the country.

China's delegates at the conference are concentrating their efforts on three paramount issues: Shantung, the Twenty-One Demands, and the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

FRANCE ASKS NOTHING

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Nov. 10.—The following statement has been made by M.

Aristide Briand on the subject of the Washington Conference.

"France will ask nothing of the Washington Conference. We have come here under no impulse of selfishness but urged by the desire to co-operate in the common task which is to establish amongst all the great nations of the world powerful solidarity. France has always pursued this aim but diplomacy works often upon difficult ground.

"Here face to face we shall be able to speak with all confidence. I can assure you that we French will make no mental reservations. If we take our place at the Conference table with very attentive ears, we shall speak little. That will show that we desire to learn what the other great nations desire but we shall also take care that they do not claim measures which may threaten our national sovereignty and our security.

"We wish with all our hearts for disarmament. France moreover has always kept her army at the extreme limit necessary for her security, but we are alone in face of a disorganised Europe. We are face to face with Germany, which has a population of 70,000,000. We are faced with the peril of Bolshevism and we must protect ourselves."

JAPAN—U. S. FIRST

Paris, Nov. 10.—The Agence Havas learns that the question which it appears, must dominate the agenda at the Washington Conference is, before all, the problem of the relations between America and Japan in the Pacific.

As there can be no disarmament, at least for the United States, until the question is settled, the real aim of the Conference is the fixing of a new judicial basis for the Far Eastern Problems. The American people considers the Japanese as imperialistic, and believes that Japan is trying to annex or to dominate the major part of the Asiatic Continent to exploit it for her own profit and to exclude American commerce, that she has designs on the Philippines and the islands of Hawaii, that she is intriguing against the United States in Chihli and Mexico, that her emigrants in California, undesirable economically, form a kind of advance guard of a possible invasion.

The Japanese people on their side make the same reproach of imperialism against the United States. They incline to believe that the United States, not content to dominate the two Americas by by the power of the Monroe Doctrine, wish to entend their domination beyond the Pacific into Asia, that they are jealous of the rapid political and economic rise of Japan, that they are endeavoring to suffocate Japan by shutting not only America but also as much as possible of Asia to immigration of the large surplus population of Japan.

The United States demand of Japan respect for the territorial integrity of China and Siberia. They are deeply impressed of the fact that this vast country of 400,000,000 inhabitants, almost defenceless as China is, constitutes at the same time an inexhaustible market for America and a formidable menace if it is submitted to the guardianship of Japan.

American businessmen wish to be in a position to buy and sell in all parts of China, in a word to be on a footing of equality with their competitors, therefore America affirms the principle of the open door and the right of all nations to have equal commercial opportunities. Japan claims that the United States shall recognise that as according to the Monroe doctrine America has special rights in the two Americas, so has Japan special rights in Asia.

LLOYD GEORGE COMES LATER

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Nov. 10.—Sir Auckland Geddes today delivered to the Secretary of State, Mr. Hughes, a message from Mr. Lloyd George, expressing the keenest disappointment at his inability to leave England in time to attend the opening of the Washington Conference. The message said:

"Nothing but the intensely delicate state of the Irish negotiations and the absolute obligation I feel to Parliament and the country, till these negotiations are complete and till the Government's unemployment legislation is operating, would have prevented me from sailing last Saturday.

"I shall sail as early as possible and hope to be present before the Conference reaches the deciding stage of its momentous work. The heart of Great Britain is deeply set upon the success of the Conference. The world needed the lead President Harding has given. It was the New World's opportunity."

Mr. Hughes expressed to Sir Auckland Geddes the American Government's appreciation of the message.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Mr. Arthur Balfour in a statement made here today described the Conference as a happy inspiration of President Harding. He said he was convinced that the objects of the Conference would be realised. He approached his new labors in a spirit of confidence and high hope. "We must not expect the impossible, although what is within reach is worth our utmost efforts. I am convinced that all the representatives of the nations are resolved to make the Conference successful."

FRANCE FOR OPEN DOOR

London, Nov. 11.—The French correspondent of the Daily Telegraph in Washington, outlining the French attitude as regards the American open door policy in China, says that France is ready to renounce all her rights under the Franco-Chinese Treaties of 1885 and 1895-8 inclusive which gave her an important sphere in the provinces of Yunnan, Kwangsi and Kwangtung.

Her only reserve will be that special measures shall be taken in order that the regime of the open door shall not mean a complete preponderance in China of the powers enjoying the privilege of territorial proximity like Japan or easier communications like America.

KATO IS THE MAN

London, Nov. 11.—Correspondents in Washington are alive to the importance of the Japanese Delegation to the Conference. They describe Admiral Baron Kato as a man of real plenipotentiary status and the Fisher or Tirpitz of Japan.

They say that the "eight and eight" program is Baron Kato's idea and he is the only Japanese in a position to cut down that program. The correspondents also refer admiringly to the presence of the pick of the Tokio and Osaka press.

POPE TO FOLLOW CLOSELY

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Washington, Nov. 9.—The American delegates have not presented to the Advisory Committee the details of the naval program pending the complete reorganisation of the Committee. Ex-Senator Sutherland has been elected Chairman of the Committee.

It has been learned from unofficial sources that Pope Benedict has approved President Harding's plan to accomplish the reduction of armaments. Though the Vatican will have no representative in the Conference Mousignor Bonzano, the apostolic delegate, will follow the proceedings and report to the Pope.

The Vatican's interest in the Conference is so great that the allocation of the Pope, which is to be delivered on November 21, may contain some allusion to it.

HARDING AS HAND OF GOD

Washington, Nov. 9.—During the impressive services held here in honor of Mr. Hara, the late Japanese Prime Minister, Mr. Yakota, representing the Japanese Cabinet, revealed that on the eve of his sailing for Washington, Mr. Hara had expressed the conviction that President Harding had been the instrument of God in calling the Washington Conference.

Mr. Hara was not known as a religious man and Mr. Yakota explained that he was deeply moved to see the murdered Premier burst into a flood of religious emotion. He quoted Mr. Hara as saying:

"If the Conference does not proceed, I believe that it is because human nature has not achieved that perfection which God expects of it and mankind must suffer further."

(Trans-Pacific Public Ledger—China Press Exclusive Service)

London, Nov. 10.—Two significant features stand out in the British attitude regarding the Conference. The first is that the discussion should center on the problems of the Far East rather than on Disarmament. The second is that Britain cannot forget that Japan has been a "good ally" for 19 years.

It still is believed here that disarmament best can be settled after Far Eastern differences have been adjusted, but the previous decision to shelve disarmament until politics are disposed of is now waived and Britain's policy now admits the desirability of a wait and see attitude.

One thing noticeable is the increase of popular interest in the Conference in sharp contrast to the lethargy of only a few days ago.

MINTUNG PARTY PLACES HOPE IN LU YUNG-HSIANG

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Nov. 9.—According to a report emanating from a certain Chinese politician, with regard to the projected expedition against the North, the Mintung party is placing deep confidence in General Lu Yung-hsiang, Tuchun of Chekiang but is not expecting much from Marshal Chang Tso-lin.

The party is of opinion that Marshal Chang will possibly maintain wellmeaning neutrality for the sake of the South regarding their common object of expelling General Wu Pei-fu from his sphere of influence in Middle China.

While Marshal Chang will not voluntarily form connection with the South, it is not improbable that if the situation turns out in favor of the South, he will come to take steps to attack the Chihli troops in the rear and to occupy Peking.

Among the conditions proposed some time ago by Marshal Chang to the Canton Government through General Lu Yung-hsiang it is provided in effect that after the expulsion of General Wu Pei-fu, the Manchurian war-lord pledges himself to observe the United Government of federated provinces organised on the basis of General Lu Yung-hsiang's principle of self-government.

Judging from the above fact, Marshal Chang Tso-lin appears to have abandoned his ambitions for the restoration of the Manchu regime or for dividing the whole country into two parts. He now intends to strengthen his own position in the Three Eastern Provinces by means of the proposed self-government of federated provinces.

WANT CHEN NEUTRAL

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Nov. 9.—In connection with the alleged Northern expedition of the Southern troops, the Canton Government is constantly guarding against the attitude on the part of General Chen Kuang-yuan, Tuchun of Kiangsi.

The Southern Government desires to cause General Chen Kuang-yuan to maintain neutrality, if possible. To this end, the Canton Government some time ago despatched its representative, Teng Wen-hui, to Kiangsi.

As a result of negotiations conducted between the representative and Chen Kuang-yuan, the latter has of late sent his delegate, Hsia Tung-ho, to the Canton Government.

STRATEGY OF SOUTH

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Nov. 9.—It is learned from a reliable source that the stratagem for the Northern expedition on the part of the Mintung Party under Dr. Sun Yat-sen is to avoid running the risk of making a hasty invasion into Hunan and of opening hostilities direct with General Wu Pei-fu, but to form as a preliminary step a revolutionalists' army of Hupeh on the borders of Hupeh and Honan provinces with a view to cutting off the connection of the Chihli troops with the North by communicating with the troops under the command of Generals Chen Chu-fan and Yu Yu-jen stationed in Shensi province.

The Mintung Party also seems to have under consideration a plan to make the Szechuen troops hold General Wu-Pei-fu's forces in check again in the district of Ichang, to make General Lu Yung-hsiang, Tuchun of Chekiang, hold General Chen Kuang-yuan in check, to make an advance as far as Changsha with the troops of the Mintung Party stationed in Hunan as the vanguard, and to capture Wuchang and Hankow.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hankow, Nov. 11.—General Wu Pei-fu proceeded to Paotingfu this morning.

WANT LU TO ATTEND

(Eastern News Agency)

Tientsin, Nov. 11.—Intending to invite General Lu Yung-ting to a military conference shortly to be held at Paotingfu, Marshal Tsao Kun has despatched his deputy, Li Chuang-fei, to Shanghai.

General Tien Chung-yu, Tuchun of Shantung, returned here last night from Paotingfu. It is reported in this connection that he has given up his intention to resign from the Tuchunship of Shantung as a result of advice given to him by Marshal Tsao Kun.

CHANG ON TRIP

(Staff Wire To The China Press)

Hankow, Nov. 10.—Chang Shao-tseng, after a series of conferences with Wu Pei-fu, left Hankow last night on a trip which will take him to Nanchang, Anking, Nanking, Shanghai, Hangchow and finally Peking. Mr. Chang is making the journey in the interests of the movement for a national convention.

CHANG SEEKS COIN

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Nov. 10.—Premier Chin-Yun-peng has complained to General Chang Tso-ling in Fengtien that the appointments of the new minister and two vice-ministers of finance were not made by him but by the President. Hereafter, the premier says, it will be difficult for him to give financial aid to the Fengtien party.

Upon receipt of the Premier's message, Chang is said to have become highly incensed and sent an urgent telegram to the ministry ordering the payment to him of $800,000 due him. As a result, it is considered likely that the new minister and his two associates may tender their resignations.

EMPRESS OF ASIA SAILS FOR STATES THIS AFTERNOON

Mail for America by the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Asia will close at the American Post Office today. Ordinary matter will be received up to 1 p.m. and registered mail must be at the Post Office by noon.

The Asia is due at Woosung at 10 a.m. today and the tender should reach the Customs jetty at about 12:30. The Empress of Asia leaves for Vancouver via Japan ports in the evening, the tender sailing from the Customs jetty at 3 p.m.

The same company's liner Empress of Japan, with mails and passengers for Shanghai arrived at Woosung last night and the tender will reach the Customs jetty at about 9:30 o'clock this morning. The Japan sails for Hongkong and Manila this afternoon and mails for those ports will close at the American Post Office at 1 p.m. for registered and 2 p.m. for ordinary matter.

Throngs Attended Funeral Yesterday Of Late Mr. Tong

Service Conducted At Home By The Rev. Mr. Fitch —Burial Deferred

Chinese and foreigners from every walk of life united yesterday in doing honor to the memory of Mr. Y. C. Tong at the funeral from the home on Avenue Haig. Floral offerings that filled two rooms and the verandah told eloquently of the esteem in which the former manager of the Shanghai Commercial and Savings Bank was held.

The service at 8 o'clock in the morning was conducted by the Rev. George A. Fitch and was heard by more than a hundred persons including representatives of many foreign and Chinese organisations.

The burial is to take place here, but it will not be held until the arrival of the late Mr. Tong's son, who is an engineer in Hunan province.

Numerous expressions of condolence were received through the day yesterday by the bereaved family, and the Shanghai Rotary Club of which Mr. Tong was one of the most active members, and the International Institute, of which he was treasurer, adopted resolutions of sorrow.

STINNES FIGHTS SHY OF POOLING ASSN. RESOURCES

(Trans-Pacific Public Ledger—China Press Exclusive Service)

Berlin, Nov. 10.—The manufacturers association here practically has rejected a plan to place their resources at the disposal of the government as security for a foreign loan of $250 million for payment of the reparations instalment due in January.

The association instead adopted non-committal resolutions authorising the continuation of negotions with foreign governments for a solution before the time for the payment.

Stinnes dominates the situation and is supposedly not opposed to the resolution directly, but he demands as a condition of his assistance that the Government let loose its control over many public utilities such as the railways, which he wishes to see made profitable.

This is tantamount to a rejection of the call for assistance and this news together with an unfavorable report by the Reichs Bank caused a further drop in the mark.

Lobingier Case Heard, Justice Dept. To Decide

BY CHARLES J. FOX

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Nov. 7.—The testimony in the hearing of Judge Charles S. Lobingier's case was completed in the Department of Justice today.

A decision is expected at the end of the month. Judge Lobingier will remain in Washington until the decision is announced.

He was called to Washington by President Harding. The State Department under which his case was to have come up transferred the hearing to the Department of Justice.

Woman Charged With Killing Youth

A charge of manslaughter is to be framed against the Chinese woman who is alleged to have beaten her 11-year-old grandson to death at the Ewo Cotton Mill, Yangtzepoo Road, a few days ago.

The inquest over the lad's body was concluded yesterday, the doctor's report showing that the youth died of contusion of the brain and the court holding that injuries inflicted by the old woman were responsible.

Foreigners And Chinese Join In Celebration Of Armistice Anniversary

was a general move to the central hall.

As the clock pointed to 12:30 p.m. a blast from a trumpet was heard and then in absolute silence twelve strokes were given on the bell recently presented to the club by the Kinsha.

This was followed by the men of H.M.S. Hawkins playing "Taps" and at its conclusion the "Last Post" was sounded by the same veterans.

After the renewal of "Taps" the trumpeters sounded again, and then the ensuing silence was followed by expressions of hope for a world wide peace.

Yesterday afternoon at Ohel-Rachel Synagogue religious services were held bearing upon Armistice Day and the Washington Conference, Rabbi W. Hirsch, B.A., delivering a powerful sermon on "The Limitation of Armaments," the text of which will also be found in another column. The service, which was largely attended, was assisted by the choir, conducted by Mr. Jacob L. Friend.

7,000 CHINESE MEET

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon seven thousand members of thirty-four Chinese organisations, students, both boys and girls, and Boy Scouts marched to the compound of the International Institute, Avenue Joffre, bearing flags and banners. They paraded in the compound and listened to patriotic speeches on China's position at the Disarmament Conference and on the significance of Armistice Day.

Christian Chinese of Shanghai held a meeting last evening at Martyrs' Memorial Hall when special prayers were offered for the success of the Disarmament Conference and an address was delivered by Mr. T. M. Yan, editor of Association Progress. The meeting was presided over by the Rev. H. K. Wong, pastor of All-Saints' Church and chairman of the Shanghai Pastors' Union. The following cable message was drafted:

"President Harding, members Pacific Conference, Washington —Chinese Church Union Shanghai representing ten thousand Christians sends greetings. Praying God that Conference may establish righteousness, justice, peace throughout world."

REV. ROBBINS' ADDRESS

The following is the address delivered by the Rev. W. Robbins at the Cathedral service:

"When the Son of Man cometh shall he find faith upon the earth?" One of those unanswered questions of Christ which he threw out to arrest the attention of His followers.

"Looking forward into the ages He saw how the world of men would develop and He leaves this query with his disciples—a challenge for all time to men especially to those who own his name.

"Now faith has never been entirely absent from the world, and it had always been the reviving and regenerating factor which time and again has saved society.

"Today we are met here to remember and to pay homage to the men and women who had faith, and gave their lives as an expression of that faith.

"Mark! I do not use the word to express what is usually meant by it in religious phraseology, for we know quite well that many whom we honor today, were in no sense religious men, but for all that it is because of their faith that we remember them today.

"Faith is that instinct lying deep in the heart of man which leads him to believe in something greater than himself—something outside himself, and which impels him to act often at great risk and sacrifice in defence of that greater something.

"They had faith and acted on it —in some cases definite faith in God—in others faith in the rightness of their cause—in humanity—in the triumph of justice over oppression—in the possibility of peace among the nations—in their country—in their regiment—or in their ship.

"Faith—varying in its object and extent—they had, and in expressing that faith they sacrificed themselves.

"Now our presence here this morning is a tacit admission that we honor and admire faith which lead and sustained them, but dare we stop at that?

"Is not this memorial service an imperious demand that we who were their friends should strive—in peace—for the ideal for which they died—in war?

WAS FAITH MISPLACED?

"In some ways their faith—judging merely from externals—seems to have been misplaced.

"Humanity has not proved itself worthy of their sacrifice.

"Justice is not yet triumphant.

"Externally at peace, the world is in a state of latent warfare.

"No nation or statesman seems great enough to conserve the fruits of their sacrifice.

"Listen to the words of the ex-premier of Italy:

For the Allies, aided by America and, what is more upheld by the prestige of fighting in the name of Right and Justice, it has been easier to win the war than to achieve peace.

The war spirit is still in the souls of the masses, and foreign policy is usually nothing but the expression of the internal situation of the various states of Europe.

Peace at home will first be deserved by those who achieve it abroad. At present there is no peace, but only the prevailing of those principles of violence which were declared to be the prerogative of the Germans and their allies, while now they are, even in a more marked degree, the characteristic of the victors."

"He is right. The nations are caught in the backwash of the wave of war which has passed over the world.

ONLY REMEDY FAITH

"It is a morbid world in which we live today, and he only remedy is faith—Faith in Christ's sense of the word.

"The instinct of faith within man turned to and centered in God, and this is reasonable.

"We believe in a God. We also believe that God made man and the world.

It is incredible that he did so without a plan for both, and it is faith which connects man with God and makes it possible for Him to carry out God's plan.

"The trouble is that we are trying to run a God-made world by man-made methods, and from that can spring nothing but disaster, for it is contrary to God's plan which must, and will eventually be carried out in earth as His will is done in Heaven.

"Our duty lies clear before us, then, in the presence of our sacred dead; bound to them by ties of blood, of friendship, and of comradeship in high adventure, dare we shirk or refuse that duty for which they gave themselves?

"The saving of the world by faith, for it is nothing less.

"So the question of Christ rings out again in our midst:

"Shall the Son of Man find faith in the earth?"

"It is an individual answer which can be given by you alone.

RABBI HIRSCH SPEAKS

The following address was made at Ohel-Rachel Synagogue yesterday afternoon by Rabbi Hirsch:

"In accordance with the command of His Majesty, the King, we have dedicated this morning two minutes of our thought to the dead who fell fighting for their country in the Great War. The idea of thus celebrating armistice day is little short of an inspiration. It is simple; it is solemn; it is beautiful. It is not only a wreath to be laid on the graves of the dead. It may be an inspiring influence to the living, provided the practice is not allowed to degenerate into soulless ceremony.

"The memory of the heroic dead should bring back to us the days of not long ago when men were ready to sacrifice youth, hope, joy, life itself, for a great purpose, well, for ideals. One needs a bold heart to talk now of ideals. For during the last two years of the war the soul of humanity was climbing down, and, alas, it is still on the downward move. Witness to it the deluge of crime and immorality that is spreading over the world. Witness to it the bitterness with which class opposes class, and the stern, relentless determination with which is carried on what biologists, talking of animals, call the struggle for existence. But it was not so at the beginning of the war. Then a real wave of idealism swept over England, and many were they who were caught by it. There was no conscription at that time, no power to drive men into the army. Neither had public opinion accumulated in such volume as to force people from their peaceful associations. It was a true force of the spirit that impelled men to change home, comfort, and dear connections, for the unspeakable privations of the battle line.

THREE IDEALS SEEN

"Besides the undefined longing which awakens in the heroic soul, there were three clear, outstanding ideals which drove men to prodigies of valor and self sacrifice. There was first the love of country. Men felt that their homeland was in danger, that their wives and mothers were threatened with humility, their brothers and children with slavery, and they went forth bravely to ward off calamity with their naked breast. Then,

Armistice Day Celebrated In Shanghai

AN outstanding event of the Armistice Day observance was the naval parade of men from the British warship Hawkins. The naval contingent landed at the Customs Jetty at 9 o'clock and marched out Nanking Road to the Race Course where exercises were held. At 11 o'clock the contingent observed the silent period and then marched on.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET IS HELD AT COUNTRY CLUB

Fathers and sons of Shanghai were entertained at a banquet at the Columbia Country Club by the Shanghai Community church last night in the first of what is intended to become an annual observance of the "Fathers and Sons" week as held in the States. The week in Shanghai will be concluded this evening in a "Fathers and Sons" fellowship dinner given at the Chinese Y. M. C. A.

Last night's banquet had 118 guests in attendance, 59 of whom were fathers and 59 sons. Dr. W. G. Hiltner presided as toast master. The program included the following toasts:

"Our Boys," Mr. W. W. Lockwood.
"Our Fathers," Mr. Paul Harvey.
"Our Boys and the Church," Dr. Luther Freeman.
"Boys Will be Boys," Dr. Edward M. Poteat.
"A Modern Parable," Mr. R. A. Christy.

Humorous recitations by Messrs. Pierson Parker, R. A. Christy and A. Q. Adamson, and an instrumental duet by Messrs. Edward and William-Lockwood followed, after which the program was given over to popular songs, and an evening of good fellowship.

The dinner at the Y.M.C.A. tonight will be given by the Chinese "Y." The spirit of fellowship between father and son will be the keynote of the evening. A film portraying the story "Hickleberry Finn" will be a feature of the program.

MANY FOLLOW TO HARA'S GRAVE IN COLD AND RAIN

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Nov. 11.—Mr. Hara's funeral which was impressive by its simplicity, was held in a cold drizzle this morning in Morioka. The town was draped with white in mourning and all business was suspended.

The funeral was attended by representatives of Their Majesties and the Princes, the Cabinet Ministers, officials and representatives of the Seiyukai Party and Diet, as well as thousands of provincial officials. At the same time, memorial services were held in other localities.

A semi-official statement explains that this is due to the Spanish policy of protection which unfavorably affects French trade.

Manchurian Dope Trade Question In House Of Commons

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 10.—In the House of Commons today Mr. P. W. Raffan asked whether inquiries would be made into the question of the opium monopoly in Kwantung and if allegations were confirmed, whether representations would be made to Japan.

Mr. Cecil Harmsworth replied that Mr. Nakamo's evidence showed that profits made by the opium office were paid to the Kwantung Government. As a result of protests from the Chinese Government it was decided to confine opium sales within strict limits. It seemed that no ground exists for British representations. Japan had intimated a definite decision to abolish entirely the Government opium monopoly in the territory of Kwantung.

Republicans Get Kentucky; Still Holding New York

(U. S. Navy Radio Through Reuter)

New York, Nov. 9.—Yesterday's elections mean that the Democrats gained substantially in Maryland, Kentucky and Virginia. In New York they gained 33 seats on the New York legislature, but the Republicans still retain a working majority. The outstanding feature was their regaining of the control of the Kentucky Legislature. Albany has a complete Democratic City Administration for the first time in 22 years.

Mr. James Cousen was elected Mayor of Detroit.

ITALY TO TELL BRITAIN EVERY MOVE IN ANGORA

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 10.—In the House of Commons at question-time today, Mr. Cecil Harmsworth said that an Italian representative was present at Angora but the Italian Foreign Minister categorically denied that Italy intended to conclude a separate agreement with Angora and assured the British Government that it would be informed of everything occurring at Angora.

The British Government had no information beyond the newspaper statement from Athens that the Christians in Cilicia had been given twenty days' notice to leave the country.

The Government on many occasions had reminded the French Government of their obligations towards the Christian minorities and had recently pointed out that the safeguards in the Franco-Kemalist agreement were inadequate. The reply of the French Government to these representations had not yet been received.

Only For Short Time Says China Of Loan Default

(Trans-Pacific Public Ledger—China Press Exclusive Service)

Washington, Nov. 10.—The reports that China's failure to meet the Continental and Commercial Bank's loan has strained China's credit in the United States and hurts her position at the Conference is not believed by the Chinese delegates here.

Both Wellington Koo and Alfred Sze say that the report is overdrawn and that the American authorities understand that the default is only temporary. They assert that Secretary Hughes himself said so.

The Chinese explain that Chow Tze-chi has been deputed to explain matters to the Chicago bank and that pending his arrival there, some delay had naturally taken place.

NO SURRENDER SAYS ULSTER

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 10.—The deliberations of the Ulster Cabinet were resumed this morning at the Savoy Hotel. At the close of the meeting, which lasted two hours, the following communique was issued:

"Sir James Craig received an apology from Mr. Lloyd George stating his inability owing to pressure of work to supply the detailed statement of proposals, promised yesterday, hoping to forward the document this afternoon, and suggesting the postponement of the meeting with him until tomorrow.

"The Prime Minister of Northern Ireland on behalf of the Cabinet wishes to make it clearly understood that there can be no surrender of Ulster's rights."

Tenants' Delegation Calls On Officials To Halt Rent Rises

A delegation of 18 representing the Tenants' Union called at various local administrative offices yesterday, presenting views on the economic hardships to which the tenants are subjected by exorbitant increases in rents now being demanded by landlords.

Among the offices visited were those of the Municipal Council of the International Settlement, the Senior Consul, the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, the Chinese Ratepayers' Association, the Defense Commissioner, the Chinese Commissioner of Police, the Shanghai Taoyin and the District Magistrate of Shanghai. The delegates were given sympathetic assurances of support in each place and it is expected that by bringing the pressure of officials and Municipal authorities to bear on the landlords, the rent situation will be eased.

The Laborers and Merchants Friendship Association is sending a communication to the Municipal Council calling upon that body to take the same action recently announced by the Frenchtown authorities for the purpose of preventing profiteering in house rentals. The organisation points out that further increase of the rents assessed dwellers of the laboring class will affect the peace and good order of the Settlement and asks that restrictive measures be taken.

ELECTRICITY
COOKING MADE EASY.

¶ Electric cooking avoids not only the serious waste of meat inseparable from old-fashioned methods of cooking, it avoids waste of all kinds—waste of some of the most valuable products of a joint, and waste of delicate flavor.

¶ The much discussed saving in the weight of meat which follows from electric roasting has now been proved. The saving is owing to no particular virtue of electricity, but to the fact that the oven-heat, regulated with ease by a few switches and a thermometer, can be maintained at the correct degree to cook the meat without the close attention and continuous manipulation of fire and dampers which is necessary to maintain on a coal range even an approximately uniform oven heat.

SUPER-DURABLE FLAT PAINT
FLAT WALL FINISH

A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.

Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.

Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.

Army Beats Navy 6-2 In Benefit Match For St. Dunstan's Home Fund

Shanghai's Veterans Have Advantage All Through The Game: Ogden Counts Three, Evans 2 And Carnell 1; Navy Not Up To Game, Fail To Deliver When They Get Ball Up

BY "WHISTLE"

The Army wiped out last year's defeat at the hands of the Navy pretty thoroughly yesterday by a 6-2 victory on the Police field. The Navy team could not have been the best possible or else they were sadly off color, being outplayed in every department of the game.

Starting with ten men the Army began to press, but the Navy backs broke up the attack. Several promising efforts went west owing to Torry Wilson's anxiety to get right up soon and early but the Referee pulled him up every time. Evans, Clark and Crawford all tested the Navy goalkeeper but he was on the spot and responded adequately.

After about ten minutes play, Wade worked up and passed cleanly to Evans who beat Jones and opened the scoring. The Navy woke up and got down, shooting over; following this, they forced a corner but nothing came of it.

Clark went away and centered beautifully, Ogden picked it up and scored number 2 with a fine clean drive. The Navy then went down with a fine movement, the three insides working together, the center beat Quayle and passed to Pound who scored for the Navy.

The Army were too strong however, and a fine pass from Wilson gave Ogden a splendid shot; Jones saved but could not clear far enough, Carnell notching number 3 for the Army. Desultory midfield play followed, mostly half back kicking, till Wilson went away and centering, Ogden converted. For a while the Navy pressed, and forced a corner, but it went over, and the half time whistle went to a 4-1 score for the Army.

The second half began with a determined effort by the Navy; they got up several times, but always shot wide or over, good passes coming in from the outsides, only to be wasted. The Army woke up then and even exchanges followed. A pretty movement between Clark, Ogden and Carnell gave the latter a chance but he screwed the ball across goal. Then both Wilson and Wade tried solo efforts finishing with long distance shots but Jones dealt with them as he did with a beauty from Evans, a moment after.

A chance was thrown away by the Navy, Mellit putting in a fine run and a perfect center but Pert put outside. Then a combined move finished with a hard drive from Clark, Jones stopped it, but Evans was up and rushed it through.

The Navy came away frequently, but though often up, they delayed shooting and Xavier and Quayle always had time to interpose. Carnell then had hard luck, putting in a beautiful low drive; he got the upright, but following up, found himself offside when Evans passed to him from the rebound. A few minutes afterwards, however, he rushed the back, who miskicked and Carnell went away beating Jones at point blank range.

The Navy had not much kick left, but a "hands" in the penalty area was well taken and Leach was beaten for the second time.

For the Army, Wade was the star performer and played one of the best games of his life, his tackling and passing being beautiful.

Clark and Evans were also in the picture all the time, and Crawford at center half played a useful hustling game, spoiling the Navy forwards all the time.

The backs showed up best for the Navy, the forwards worked hard but couldn't shoot, and several open goals were thrown away.

The match ended Army 6, Navy 2.

Harriers Plan To Run Today

The members of the Shanghai Harriers Club will hold a training run this afternoon starting from the American School, 147 North Szechuen Road.

There will be two teams out, one consisting of runners wishing to train on the track. C. C. Reneman will be in charge of the track team.

The cross-country men will be under H. F. L. Wilson and will take a slow training jaunt in the Kiangwan district. There will be no racing.

Municipal Public School Holds Its Annual Sport Meet

The annual sports meeting of the Municipal Public School for Chinese was held Thursday afternoon in the school grounds before a large gathering of parents, friends and pupils.

The program included races for seniors, juniors and midgets, a hurdle race, high and long jumps, and a hundred yards race for "old boys," which was run in eleven seconds.

The 220 yards race was won in 28 and 4/5ths. seconds, the high jump was 4 feet 8 inches, a much lower record than that of former years, and the long jump was 16 feet, a creditable performance for a boy. There was also an attractive display by the boy scouts and wolf cubs under Scoutmaster J. L. King.

At the conclusion of the sports the prizes, which included a silver cup given by the Alumni Association, were given away by Mr. S. Y. Chang, M. Sc., an "old boy" of the school and Vice-President of the Alumni Association.

The following officials were present: Referee: Mr. G. S. Foster Kemp: Judges: Messrs. H. G. Whitcher, J. Moffat, M.C., G. M. Hope, F. Kwok Sing, K. S. Huang, Miss T. M. Pierce, Miss E. M. Adlam: Starter: Mr. T. G. Baillie, and Secretary: Mr. H. B. Lobb, on whom fell the main preparations which resulted in a very successful meeting.

PRINCETON AND YALE TO MEET IN BIG MATCH TODAY

With Wisconsin And Michigan Playing Football Titles Will Be Decided

When Yale meets Princeton this afternoon in New Haven and the Wisconsin eleven plays Michigan at Madison the American football championships of the East and of the Middle West may be fairly well decided. The two matches are ranked as the biggest of today's program.

Princeton in the East notwithstanding its losing to Chicago and the Naval academy is rated as the most likely eleven for Eastern honors. The Orange and Yellow have already beaten the third of the "Big Three" of the East, Harvard, in a 10 to 3 score. Wisconsin is selected as the probable winner in the Middle West.

TODAY'S BIG GAMES

Yale vs. Princeton at New Haven.
Wisconsin vs. Michigan at Madison.
Vanderhilt vs. Georgia at Nashville.
Kansas vs. Nebraska at Lincoln.
California vs. Washington at Berkeley.
Center vs. Alabama Poly at Birmingham.
Columbia vs. Ohio U. at New York
Georgia Tech vs. Georgetown at Atlanta.
Harvard vs. Brown at Cambridge.
Illinois vs. Chicago at Urbana.
Iowa vs. Indiana at Iowa City.
Iowa State vs. Kansas Aggies at Ames.
Notre Dame vs. Haskell at Notre Dame.
Ohio State vs. Purdue at Columbus.
Penn and Dartmouth at New York.
Penn State vs. Navy at Philadelphia.
Pittsburg vs. Wash. and Jeff.
Stanford vs. Nevada at Palo Alto.

Grand National Today Will Be The Classic Of Off Day Of Fall Meeting

Old Bill And Petersfield Are Rated As The Contenders For The Premier Steeplechase; Rumor Has It Campox Pony May Not Start; Three Handicaps And Big Fields Confuse Talent

The Grand National Steeplechase this afternoon will feature the running on the off day of the Shanghai Race Club's Fall Meeting. There are nine races on the card, including, aside from the Grand National, three handicaps, four other running races, and the yearly Mafoos' event.

The Grand National is conceded to be anything but a certainty for any one of the 14 ponies entered. Old Bill, last Spring's winner, and Petersfield the winner of the race both in the spring and in the Autumn of 1920 are ranked as the favorites.

Old Bill, since his defeat in the Champions by both The Hawk and Maresfield has lost some of his usual strong and confident following. He also loses some of his support by reason of the hard condition of the track. It even is being said, that if the going does not soften up before race time, the pony will be scratched. Should Old Bill not run it would appear that Petersfield may win. Other contenders in the race are Liability, Letchfield, Wild Cat, Djemnah and Vauxhall.

The first three races on the program are handicaps. The Sub Griffins handicap, the first race will be run out between Le Goulet, Paddison, Daisyland and Kobe. The Autumn handicap, the second event has some of Shanghai's best ponies entered, including Winsome and Hasty's best: The Hawk, the Oriole, and the Peacock. Old Bill may start if it doesn't go in the jumping race, and will run its usual winning race. Another stable with strong entries is Potts and Hayim, with the "King" string. With 83 ponies entered, however it is anybody's race.

Other races are wide open.

The first saddling bell this afternoon will be rung at 1:15 o'clock. After the racing, from 5:30 until 7:30 p.m. the coffee room of the Grand Stand will be given over to dancing. Mr. Frank Augustine's Jazz Band will play.

Chinese Athlete Breaks Records

(China Press Correspondence)

Paotingfu, Nov. 7.—The Central Chihli Interscholastic Meet was run off here last Saturday and was won by the Paotingfu Yu Te Middle School, last spring's North China champions.

The star of the meet was Ma Hsiang P'o, of the above school, who took six firsts, pole vault, high jump, broad jump, hop, step and jump; shot put, and javelin throw, and one second, the discus throw.

Incidently he broke the National Interscholastic records in shot, pole vault, high jump, and hop, step and jump.

Closing Cruise Of Yacht Club Tomorrow

The closing cruise of the Shanghai Yacht Club will be held tomorrow when the yachts will leave the Peking Road jetty at 10 a.m. and cruise to a rendezvous near the Pagoda.

The presentation of prizes won during the year will be made on board the "Foam" during the afternoon.

Foreigners And Chinese Join In Celebration Of Armistic Anniversay

there was the ideal of justice. It was felt that those who planned the war violated justice. The wrong which the central powers projected upon the world was palpable and outrageous, and men felt provoked to sacrifice much in order to see justice enthroned and right re-established.

"And finally there was the vague longing for universal peace. People apprehended that a war so well organised, so effectively carried out, must become a serious thing, and they hoped, if unrighteous ambition could be checked, peace might come to stay. 'War to end war.' Who has not heard this cry? Who has not felt its thrill, or who was not cheered by the hope it carried? Many a poor friend who found a lonely death on the blood-sodden soil of Europe, who breathed his last in the cold embrace of the solitary winds, without a fond hand to caress the wound, without a tear of love to ease the pain, sought and found consolation in this hope, and closed his eyes upon visions bright that too long shunned a darkened world.

REMEMBER VALOROUS DEAD

"And now that we remember gratefully those to whose valor and self-sacrifice we owe our security, perhaps our very existence, we should vow loyalty to these three ideals which helped to save mankind from calamity, and which must become a real dominating force if we are to see one day a better world established. For in the words of the ex-President of America, 'It is not knowledge but ideals that move the world.

"I need not ask a Jewish congregation to be patriotic, for patriotism is ingrained in the Jewish soul. Love of country and loyalty are enjoined by our religion. But in this, like in other aspects of Judaism, religion only reinforces a natural sentiment. For patriotism is not a moral deduction; it is a natural feeling. It is as natural to love one's country, as is natural to love one's father and mother. And as the family sentiment is stronger in the Jew than in other men, the Jew is by nature more patriotic than others. This accounts for the fact that the Jew is a patriot even in the countries where he is humiliated, and oppressed, and hunted like a beast of the field. In Russia which has been a veritable hell for our coreligionists the Jews yet love their country. Their patriotism might have been more profound under better conditions. But the love which they bear this cruel, irascible, step-mother is more than she deserves. During the war many Russian Jews in America travelled round the north, and through the White Sea made their way to the battle front to fight for their country, while behind them their ungrateful compatriots were killing off their fathers and mothers. But in the lands of freedom and tolerance, where the Jew is unrestricted, unopposed, and can exercise his religion without restraint, there is no subject more loyal and more law abiding than he. England has since long been the friend of the Jews and the enthusiasm with which her Jewish subjects rallied round her standard in time of peril vindicated their faith and devotion. Our motto was: 'England was all she could be to the Jews; the Jews must be all they can be to England.' And the Jews have been all they could be to England.

DIED FOR SACRED CAUSE

"Over 50,000 Jewish soldiers fought in the British army and few were the Jews who fell in battle without the conviction that they died for a sacred cause. We claim no credit for that. The Jews have done no more than their duty. But we resent the agitation that is carried on against us by certain individuals and a certain section of the press. We do not deserve that our loyalty should be held up to suspicion, or that the sin of a few international Jews in Russia should be visited on our heads. Beside the graves of our brothers who fell fighting for England we protest against this injustice, and appeal to all fair-minded Englishmen to discourage a propaganda which can only sow dissension and become a source of weakness to the Empire.

"Justice, the second ideal for which these we remember today gave their life, is not so natural and spontaneous as love of country. Every savage fights to protect his country, but not every savage fights to protect justice. We need all the inspiration we can draw from the past to continue the struggle for justice in time of peace. The connection between the many small abuses which enter and re-enter our daily life and the great political outrages which culminate in war is far less remote than we think. Just as the genius is the culminating point of the intellectual and spiritual forces of the nation, so is the military tyrant, or unjust tendencies of the nation he represents. He is the apex of the triangle the body and foundation of which are made up by the people below. We start with the wrong end when we banish the unrighteous leader and think all will be well. We should begin with the foundation not with the roof. Remove the many little injustices that enter our lives continually and there will be no great international abuses to provoke war. I ask you to continue the struggle for justice in every walk of life for justice is the foundation of our creed.

JUSTICE FIRST

"Judaism is often criticised because its central feature is justice not love. Let men first learn to be just and speak of love after. So far justice is limping on both legs. Is every father just? If so, why do we have societies for the prevention of cruelty to children? Is man just to woman? If so, why do we have societies for the protection of women? Is the employer just to his employe? If so, what need is there for trade unions which are only instruments of force fashioned for self protection? Is our entire social system just? If so, how is it possible that on the one side there should be such extravagance and luxury, and on the other, revolting penury and squalor that are a disgrace to humanity and a challenge to religion? Let men strive to make justice a controlling force in every day life. Let them see that their homes and their families, aye, and their shops and their factories are filled with just men. Let them see that only just and honest men stand at the head of their communities and municipalities, that only just and honest men represent them in parliament, and there will not be an unjust politician even if you advertise for him.

"It is necessary to struggle for a loftier conception of justice for only through justice can be secured universal peace, the third ideal for which many heroic youth sacrificed themselves. The German Emperor boasted for years that he was preparing for war in order to secure peace. You know how he secured it. Now compare the Jewish conception of universal peace. It is based not on force but on right. Let me read to you the wonderful conception of universal peace of the prophet Isaiah who lived more than 26 centuries ago. 'And there shall come forth a shoot out of the stock of Jesse, and a twig shall grow forth out of his roots. And the spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirt of counsel and might, the spirit of knoweledge and of the fear of the Lord. And his delight shall be in the fear of the Lord. And he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither decide after the hearing of his ears. But with righteousness shall he judge the poor and decide with equity for the meek of the land. And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins. And the wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf and the young lion fatling together, and a little child shall lead them.'

"This idyllic picture is further amplified in chapter II of the same book. 'And He shall judge between the nations, and shall decide for many peoples and they beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore.'

LEAGUE MARKS DAWN

"This great idea, like many other religious truths, was first revealed to our people. It struggled in darkness for thousands of years, and only now begins to emerge into light. The League of Nations and the Washington Conference which open today are an honest attempt to realise the vision of Isaiah. But these grandest political evolutions known in history need the quickening life which can only come from the active interest and vitalising contact of the people themselves. The League of Nations will never become the force it aims to be unless the idea for which it stands penetrates the ranks of the masses.

"People should first recognise that there is nothing really glorious in militarism. That will be a great step forward. For years and years we were dazzled with the will o' the wisp of military splendor. Bards and poets sang its praise, and princes exhausted themselves to give it a magnificent appearance. If militarism is detestable it should not go harnessed in golden trappings. If war is a dirty business, then there is no reason why scavengers should wear rags and soldiers be clad in purple.

"Consider next that Isaiah sets before us the ideal of universal peace not only in outline. He actually works out the details how it can be realised. What is most noteworthy in the prophetical vision of universal peace is that in order to bring about this consummation justice and righteousness must pervade the world, and that the serpent must lose its sting and the wild beast cease to hurt. In other words, there must be peace everywhere, on there will be peace nowhere. You cannot have peace abroad and strife at home. The rash father, the intolerant husband, the harsh employer, are all breeding the germs of war. The notion that harbors opposing creeds, contending factions, clashing interests forges a warlike temperament which will disturb the peace one day. Can you say where in lies the difference between a strike and a war? There are none in principle, though of course there are differences in detail. Both are an appeal to force not to justice. In a strike as in a war each side tries to starve the other into surrender. And the malice and hatred that well forth from the contending parties are not less injurious than poison gas. Such upheavals should be made unnecessary. We cannot expect to have a tribunal of justice to settle international disputes, while we employ force to adjust our domestic differences.

"The great difficulty that lies in the way is to subordinate personal interests to a great ideal. But this too men will learn in time, though the process must be slow and painful. Love of country, love of justice, and love of peace, when they become the dynamic forces of human life will teach men how to regulate their relationships at home and abroad, and peace, national and international will be made secure and lasting. For this end all should fight on untiringly. It is the battle of the Lord in which men and women, young and old, strong and weak, can participate. And the souls of the brave dead will look across the borderline of life and bless our endeavors. Their premature graves will become the flower-beds of humanity, and their blighted youth the seed of a regenerate life. And out of the hovering darkness will emerge a new world upon which God may look and be content, and say once more, 'Behold it is very good.'"

LIES WITH MARTYRS

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Nov. 10.—The flag-covered coffin of the American Unknown Soldier was this morning placed on a gun-carriage and escorted by military and naval detachments under weeping skies to the Main Rotunda of the Capitol and placed beneath the main dome where the murdered Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley rest.

Mrs. Harding placed a ribbon on the coffin to which President Harding pinned the Silver Shield of the United States with forty-eight gold stars and then laid a wreath of red roses on the coffin. Vice-President Coolidge and Mr. Gillette, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, deposited on the coffin a wreath of pink roses as a tribute from Congress. Mr. Taft, Secretary of the Navy Denby and other officials also bestowed wreaths.

Mr. Arthur Balfour and Sir Auckland Geddes headed a procession of twenty automobiles, filled with wreaths from the British Embassy to the Capitol. The Earl of Cavan on behalf of the King placed a wreath on the coffin of the Unknown Soldier.

DAY OBSERVED IN JAPAN

(Reuter Pacific Service)

Tokio, Nov. 11.—Armistice Day was widely observed by the foreign communities of Japan today.

The priests of the Jodo Sect, after a memorial service to the Fallen, despatched their wishes for the success of the Conference to Washington.

ARRIVE AT CAPITAL

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Nov. 9.—America's "unknown soldier" is home again.

"GRAVE OF UNKNOWN POILU"

Major John C. Emery, Commander of the American Legion, is here shown placing a silk American flag on the grave of the unknown Poilu at the Arc de Triomphe in Paris.

The Cruiser Olympia, on which the mortal remains of one of the thousands who gave his life for America's cause were brought from France, today passed slowly up the Potomac and docked at Washington.

Guns from the forts in the vicinity of the capital roared a solemn salute. The vessel's flag was half-masted, and a guard of honor stood at rigid attention about the casket bier.

Secretary of the Navy Denby, Secretary of War Weeks and General Pershing were among the officials on the dock. The casket was carried ashore, the band playing a funeral dirge. Above all could be heard the shrilling of the boatswain's pipe.

NEWSPAPERS CLOSE

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Nov. 11.—Today being the Armistice Day, all the Chinese newspaper offices here are closed, so that there will be no issue of papers tomorrow. This afternoon an athletic meeting was held on the Italian parade ground, which was attended by many champions. The streets are full of animated throngs.

Joy-Ride And Wine Land Russian In The Mixed Court

Details of a joy-ride which involved the consumption of 36 bottles of champagne were given in the Mixed Court yesterday when Nicholas Lesser, Russian commercial agent, 394A Broadway, appeared on a charge of stealing the wine.

The allegation is that Lesser stole the champagne from the boarding house of Mr. O. Katz, 30 East Seward Road. A Central Garage chauffeur testified that he had driven the defendant to that address on the night of November 5 and that he went inside and brought the champagne out to the car, which was occupied by three women and another man. The first bottle was opened on the Bund and the ride continued until the liquor had all been consumed. Police witnesses stated that some of the wine was given to Sikh policemen on duty.

The defendant stated that he did not remember going to the Seward Road address on the night in question. Mr. Katz testified that he did not know the accused. Lesser was arrested following a report by the chauffeur, who, after some difficulty, had traced him as the man who signed the chit for the car.

The case was remanded for one week and the Court advised the defendant to obtain counsel as the accusations against him included housebreaking as well as theft of the champagne.

Hylan Wins Again To N.Y. Mayoralty In Bitter Campaign

(Special To The China Press)

New York, Nov. 10.—Tammany Hall again demonstrated its absolute supremacy in local politics in New York, when Mayor John F. Hylan, heading the Tammany ticket for re-election, crushed the coalition field under an avalanche of votes and came through at the polls with a plurality estimated at 420,000.

The campaign was marked by a display of bitter invective unusual even in New York. As in Hylan's first campaign for the mayoralty, every New York newspaper, with the exception of the Hearst publications, used every means in its possession in its efforts to dethrone Tammany. But astute political observers today, in looking over the results, see another evidence of the power of organisation in American local politics.

Little surprise was expressed here over the relatively poor showing made by Henry H. Curran, who headed the coalition ticket which opposed Tammany. Mr. Curran had come through at the primaries as the coalition choice only after a bitter fight, and it is believed that the warring factions in the ranks of his own party, did as much to defeat him as the strength of Tammany itself.

Harding Asks Aid For Red Cross Drive

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Nov. 10.—In a statement issued at the White House today, President Harding made an support of the annual campaign of the American Red Cross. The drive earnest plea for nation-wide is scheduled to start tomorrow.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which is poisonous in large doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not give your children unless you or your physician know of what it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

Piece Goods Trade Report

Noel, Murray & Co., Ltd.

Cotton.—Ginning is proceeding very rapidly this year, news is just to hand from America that the figures now stand at 6,650,000 bales which is probably 90 percent of the whole crop. The effect of this announcement caused prices to break and spot cotton in New York has dropped to 18 cents, January is quoted at 17.24 cents, May at 16.94 and July at 16.50.

In Liverpool on Monday, spot good middlings stood at 11.85d., January cotton was 11.46d. and March 11.35d.

Bengals have fallen to 8.90d. and Egyptians remain unchanged at 23.25d.

In Bombay, prices have dropped very much and F. G. Bengals stand at Rs. 313, Fine Oomras at Rs. 395 and F. G. Broach at Rs. 452.

India is producing a big crop, over 6,000,000 bales of 400 lbs., and the quality of the cotton is said to be excellent.

The Egyptian crop is small and the States will surely plant a greatly reduced acreage next spring. The local production this year is of good quality.

Money is rather easier, 23 cands against 20, but the Chinese regard this as only a temporary phase.

Some good clearances of yarn and cloth have been made by the local mills, but for the time being buyers are holding off, no doubt waiting for bottom prices to be reached.

Yarn.—With the exception of 3,000 bales of local spinnings sold to the retailers, no sales of yarn have taken place. The price of yarn is falling.

Auctions.—31,215 pieces were offered this week and at the opening a dragging and falling market had to be faced, few orders being in dealers' hands. Better conditions were claimed for today, but a glance through the list of prices realised does not seem to justify the claim, there being many more falls than rises in every department.

Cotton Yarn.—Indian:—No sales reported.

Japanese.—The latest quotations from the Osaka Sampin Exchange are:—Yen 233.60 for November and Yen 225.90 for February.

Local.—There has been no business done excepting 3,000 bales sold to the retail shops for bundles rates are cheaper, viz:—No. 12s. Tls. 135.75, No. 16s. Tls. 133.25/151.75 and No. 20s. Tls. 159.25/172.75.

China Cotton.—The market at the close is:—Tungchow Tls. 31.50, Taichong Tls. 31.50, Best Steam Ginned Tls. 30.50, Shanghai Ordinary Tls. 30.50, Northern Seed $15.50 and Southern Seed $14.00.

"Lost Island" Yields Its Secret To An Explorer

Major Charcot, Of Antarctic Fame, First Man To Set Foot On Rockall Isle, 300 Miles West Of The Hebrides

London, Oct. 17.—A French Antarctic explorer, Major Charcot, has just succeeded in landing upon the "lost" island of Rockall, 300 miles west of the Hebrides—a feat (it is claimed) which has been achieved by no other man.

There is, in fact, something peculiarly exclusive about islands; they are like that in Sir James Barrie's "Mary Rose," anxious to be visited, but as chary as the most demure of maidens of displaying their charms to the casual passer-by. Like a good love, they have to be wooed and won. They are capricious in their humor.

Jan Meyen, for instance, 300 miles east of Greenland, screens its beauty in a veil of fog so successfully that in 1910 it was seen for the first time for fifty years. The "floating island" in Lake Derwentwater, after being visible for six or seven weeks, disappears altogether. Nushima, off Japan, is sometimes there, sometimes not.

Then there is an island off Rangoon which grows while you wait, still another off the Behring Straits made the surrounding water so hot that in 1906 fisherman claimed it was not possible to approach it.

Islands are always being thrown up or sunk. One appeared in the Serpent's Mouth Strait of Mexico last month. You never know where to look for them. The balance, however, is kept even, for in 1908 three islands off Mexico suddenly disappeared altogether.

Islands cater for all tastes. In Papaelise there are seventy girls to one man, in Macquarie Island there are 80,000,000 penguins and no men. Pitcairn Island is reserved solely for Seventh Day Adventists, while Bardsey, off the coast of Cardigan, boasts 20,000 saints, all buried, so as not to jostle the tourists. At St. Kilda you escape from doctors altogether. "We just die a natural death," explained an inhabitant, while the Tories of Tory Island have to pay $10 to a doctor to come over to them at all. But they charge him $20 to take him away again.

You could buy "the Isle of Dreams," off Lemon Bay, ten miles from Arcadia, for $7,750 a little time ago, and the total wealth of the inhabitants of Pitcairn Island is reputed to amount to $50, so it also would probably be going quite cheap.

There was an island, too, offered recently for one shilling, and the bidding for North Uist, in the Hebrides, was so slow that the only likely buyer was given a big lunch to induce him to take it.

If you want loneliness you might do worse than purchase Puka-Puka, an island in the Pacific, which is passed, not visited, by six ships in fifty years.

U.S. MUST WORK TO KEEP TRADE WAR AFFORDED

(Trans-Pacific Public Ledger—China Press Exclusive Service)

Washington, Nov. 10.—Shipping Board experts who have completed a survey of foreign trade requirements and opportunities, have reached the conclusion that the wartime trade of the United States was largely artificial and now is being rapidly lost.

The report shows the country must start anew if it expects to have any foreign trade at all and must meet the extra difficulties that now have arisen.

Europe's effort to pay her debts necessitates selling vast amounts of goods overseas and therefore the United States as chief creditor must develop new markets, not only for her surplus production, but also for the foreign goods which she must take in payment of debts. Therefore elaborate machinery for re-exportation must be built up in which shipping must hold a prominent part.

HONGKONG'S OBSERVANCE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Nov. 11.—Punctually at 11 o'clock this morning a signal-gun was fired for the observance of the two minutes' silence in honor of the dead in the war. After two minutes buglers stationed on the Murray Parade Ground sounded the Last Post. The electric cars stopped and civilians in the street stood to attention with bared heads.

A special service was held at St. John's Cathedral at which the Governor and representatives of the Army and Navy and British Legion attended and the Bishop of Victoria preached. After the ceremony the Governor placed a wreath on the War Memorial in the Cathedral Compound.

Plan To Raise Funds To Run School For Laborers' Children

The Social Service Department of the Shanghai Woman's Club met yesterday afternoon at 11 A Quinsan Road to discuss ways and means to raise funds for the support of the nine free schools which the department is running in the factory districts of Shanghai.

The Social Service Department established these schools for the kiddies whose mothers are working in various factories and who play around the factory grounds. They pay for a teacher, books, and rent for the school rooms. The work of the club women was so successful last year that nine schools are continuing this season.

DEN IS CALLED IN

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Nov. 11.—Baron Den, Governor General of Formosa arrived here today at 12.40 p.m.

SAIONJI WON'T ACT

Tokio, Nov. 11.—As previously reported, Prince Saionji has firmly declined to accede to the requests of the two Elder Statesmen, Prince Yamagata and Marquis Matsukata. He declared at an interview yesterday with Messrs. Okazaki and Mochizuki, managers of the Seiyukai Party, that he was unable to take the proposed office.

The plan to save the situation by making Prince Saionji premier has to all appearance proved a failure with the consequence that the Seiyukai party is now compelled to select a premier from among its own members. The party is expected to hold a conference of its managers upon their return from Morioka, where they attended the funeral of the late Premier, Mr. Hara.

Meantime, a section of the bureaucratists has begun to work with a view to forming a bureaucratic Cabinet in the name of national unity, irrespective of any political party. The Kenseikai Party, the Opposition, held a meeting yesterday, unanimously passing the following resolution:

"If the Seiyukai Party will rectify its formation and devise measures to maintain the status quo of the political situation, the Kenseikai Party would make no opposition to it."

Moreover, in the present circumstances, the consensus of public opinion is in favor of the continuance of the Cabinet of the Seiyukai Party.

BUDGET IS SLASHED

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Nov. 11.—The total Budget for the next fiscal year decided at yesterday's Cabinet council is Yen 1,463,000,000, showing a decrease of Yen 122,000,000 as compared with the previous fiscal year.

Exchange Fluctuations
Asia Banking Corporation

November 11, 1921.

Spot and forward bar silver were each up 1/4d. in London yesterday.

The New York price advanced to 68⅛ cents and the London-New York cross rate is unchanged at 394¾.

The official rates here today were the same as yesterday, but the market throughout the day was on the easy side.

In the morning as high as 3/9½ for cash, 3/9⅝ for November and 3/8⅞ for December Sterling was done.

Gold Dollars were done at 75¼ for cash, 74¾ for November and 74 for December.

In the afternoon, however, the market weakened considerably, as low as 3s. 9d. for November Sterling and 3s. 8⅝d. for December being done. The best obtainable for Gold Dollars was 74½ for cash, 74 for November and 73¼ for December.

The market closed weak. No news of importance has been received from London and New York regarding the silver markets there.

Yokohama Raw Silk Prices Slump Again

Tokio, Oct. 25.—Buyers in the Yokohama raw silk market maintained their offers yesterday and every one hoped that another advance would be possible. But the Yokohama Exchange found in that continued activity a sign of a new reaction, and yesterday's prices all tended downward.

A New York cable yesterday stated that in New York at the end of last week the raw silk market was somewhat stronger. Kwansai special extra was quoted at $6.40, an advance of 5 cents. Shinshu No. 1 Best was quoted at $6.10, an advance of 10 cents. In the Yokohama export market this mood in the New York market was well reflected by export buyers.

In the early morning several exporters including some foreigners resumed their offers. As holders demanded prices advances between Y.20 and Y.30 they were not matured till noon, but exporters were not discouraged. In the afternoon, efforts were made to mature them by mutual concessions.

The bulls started spirited bids and all months soared. But opinion began to obtain among operators that buyers for the United States didn't care for new business, due to the railway labor trouble in the United States and the lack of new orders on buyers' books. Many buyers turned sellers and price declines started. Although in the afternoon the new declines were slightly curbed the following were the day's result:

	Opening	Closing
October	Y.165.00	Y.162.70
November ...	165.50	163.60
December ...	166.40	164.70

EXPORTS ARE LARGER
(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 10.—As compared with September, the trade returns for October show a distinct improvement in the export trade, the increase, including re-exports, being nearly £9,000,000, while imports decreased £2,250,000. It is thus apparent that the adverse trade balance has been reduced to about £12,000,000 as compared with an average of £26,000,000 for the previous three months and £43,000,000 in June.

Cotton Market Report

A. B. ROSENFELD AND SON

China Cotton.—The market has had a distinctly weak appearance throughout the past week. Prices were carried down about two taels from the level of a week ago, and notwithstanding the profit-taking by those who had been engaged on the short side, the market showed very little resisting power and no rally of consequence has been experienced so far.

The most significant feature of the situation was the sudden weakening of spot cotton in consequence of a general withdrawal by spinners and tightness of the money market, in spite of the fact that the movement of cotton was hardly full enough to cause any serious pressure.

From the above, it will be seen that as the general outlook look is concerned, we still consider a lower level of prices warranted.

Yarn.—Since our last report, our market has been generally weak, with a further decline of four taels from last week's level. At the close of the market it seemed to be in favor of steady prices. As to the future tendency of the market, we are of the opinion that the market will remain steady and possibly rise when the financial condition gets normal.

China Cotton.—Our market during the past week showed hardly any activity and while the native spinners have done their utmost to take advantage of the current rates the volume of business transacted was on the whole too small to affect the market either one way or the other, so that prices remain about the same level as in the previous period with a slightly easier undertone at the close.

Gain Of The Conference

BY THEODORE MARBURG

(Former Chairman Federal Reserve Board)

THE conference on armaments can have only minor results unless it leads to the United States entering an association of nations organised to discourage war. What nation will be willing to make serious reduction of its armament until there is something to take the place of armaments in providing security? Again, how can a sense of real security obtain until lapse of time shall have shown the ability of that association to do what it professes to do? Despite the fact that the German fleet is at the bottom of the sea, even England could not, until then, afford to cripple her navy, for it would be invaluable in helping to defeat a land attack upon her continental allies. Until then certainly France cannot afford to neglect her army.

An agreement to arrest the growth of naval armaments will come out of the conference, since no pressure need be brought upon the powers to have them agree to do what they already want to do, and since we ourselves have so greatly increased our naval strength of late that we can afford to assume a virtue in this respect. But the reduction of armaments which the world needs can come only after a period of years as the result of effective organisation for peace.

Now, what, in the way of world-organisation, may we look forward to at the hands of the present Administration?

Mr. Hughes's last utterance on the subject was at Brown on June 15, when he referred to "reserving independence of action in such exigencies as may arise acording to our conception of duty at the time." This means that Mr. Hughes repudiates today, as he did during the Presidential campaign, that which is the essential feature of any effective league to discourage war, namely, the obligation, previously entered into, to punish wanton aggression.

Although the Administration has never put out a definite plan for international organisation, what it has in mind is indicated by utterance during the campaign and since. It embraces three features: world court, development of international law, and conferences to compose conflicts of policy after they arise.

The first item of this program the League of Nations has already given us. Even the judges have been elected. It remains only to set the court in operation. For the Administration to continue to talk of giving such an institution to the world is, as George Eliot puts it, "to bottle up the air and make a present of it to those who are already standing out of doors."

The second item of the Administration's indicated program (development of international law) is simply continuing a process which has been going on for years; too slowly, no doubt, but at an accelerated pace of late, and now to be distinctly promoted as one of the duties of the League of Nations.

The third item (conference after trouble has begun) is nothing other than what we had under the Concert of Europe, mingling success with tragic failure. The basic principle of the whole program is that on which The Hague situation rests, namely, voluntary co-operation, which proved so inadequate to the task of preventing the World War. Latterly the Administration has been neglecting the very term "organisation" and stressing "co-operation." It looks as if it were beginning to realise that its world-organisation plan was an attempt to build on ground already occupied by a superior structure. And when we come to think of it, would it not be presumptuous of our Government to ask forty-eight nations to lay aside, at our sole bidding, an organisation which they formed under our leadership—on the insistence, in fact, of our then President—and accept a new plan of our devising? We would have little respect for them if they did.

Proud of American leadership? Yes. But of the leadership which has already given international organisation to the world! Not of that which would suffer the passing temper of a hostile political group to wreck that great experiment! For only its guarantee can ultimately solve the problem of armaments.

Such careful students of history as Professor J. Holland Race of Cambridge are certain that armaments, especially competitive armaments, actually provoke war. An agreement to arrest their growth is accordingly well worth while. But it is only scratching the surface of the problem. And the conference may open the eyes of the Administration to that fact.

The Price

By S. E. KISER

We worry over our defeats,
We mourn the prize we could not seize,
And always the forbidden sweets
Leave longest cherished memories.

We soon forget the easy ways
Where carelessly we moved along;
The fearful, tearful, stormy days
Should serve to make our courage strong.

We cannot learn to be resigned
When Fate appears to crowd us back;
The joys that come to us we find
Much poorer than the ones we lack.

We envy others who have done
The things we tried and failed to do;
The man whose million has been won
Is grieved because it isn't two.

Our minds are on the might-have-beens,
The chances that we sought in vain;
Defeat is where their strength begins
Who reach the heights we wish to gain.

The great must learn to profit by
The pain that disappointment brings;
We mutter sadly, you and I,
When cheated out of little things.

Our hearts and hopes are always set
Upon the present scheme or plan,
And, failing, sadly we forget
Where courage died and doubt began.

Perhaps despair has been the cost
There laurels decorate a brow;
If Dante had not loved and lost
He might not be remembered now.

FORTUNES MADE ON THE TURF

The "Off Day" may be a little better.

If all that money did go to Kobe, rejoice with Kobe!

If we can't win ourselves it is nice to hear that others can.

Perhaps we will win one day—perhaps!

Here is a little article written by a well known English bookie for "Answers," telling of some fortunes won on the Turf.

Although nowadays there are no plungers whose individual bets can be compared in magnitude with the wagers of men like Lord George Bentinck or Lord Glasgow, the number of men who will wager sums of £1,000 to £10,000 is much larger than it used to be.

King Edward always had a respectable bet on any of his own horses that had a reasonably good chance of winning a race, but usually this would be his Majesty's only bet for the day.

On one occasion he put part of the amount he intended having on his own horse on another.

About this incident I heard a rather interesting yarn from a member of his Majesty's Household.

The King every morning receives a number of dispatches from different Government departments.

Each communication is headed with a reference consisting of some letters and a number. Sometimes, though not often, the letters spell a word.

THE TIP WAS TAKEN

Well, on the occasion I am alluding to, which was the last day of the Ascot meeting in 1909, the reference letters on the dispatch sent to King Edward from the Foreign Office overnight spelt "Bomba," and the reference number was "1."

Now, Bomba, owned by Mr. J. A. de Rothschild, was entered for the Gold Cup; but it was a rank outside, and neither its owner nor trainer thought it had any chance.

King Edward's Minoru was running that day in another race, the St. James' Palace Stakes, for which it was a red-hot favorite. It was his Majesty's intention to have his usual sum on his own horse; but the extraordinary coincidence of the Foreign Office dispatches being headed "Bomba" induced the King to change his mind.

When he got to the course he told several of his friends of the incident. Strange to say, the only one who followed the Royal tip was Count Mensdorff, the then Austrian Ambassador in London, who managed to get a hundred pounds on the outsider at thirty to one.

KING EDWARD'S BIGGEST "WIN"

His Majesty, I heard it stated, got £500 on at twenty-five to one, and this is believed to be the largest sum he ever won in a single bet.

Minoru won the St. James' Palace Stakes at a canter, but he started at three to one on.

When Persimmon won the Eclipse Stakes, King Edward had backed him handsomely. The sum was the largest King Edward ever had on a horse; but he did not win much, as Persimmon was not "at a long price." But King Edward was seldom a fortunate backer.

Most big bets are nowadays worked by a syndicate in which there may be from half a dozen to a dozen people.

When Gainsborough won the New Derby, or War Derby, in 1918 a syndicate consisting of a couple of wealthy officers in the Guards, a French merchant, and a well-known actress worked a big commission.

Gainsborough was backed at prices ranging from eight to one to thirteen to eight on, and the syndicate, I believe, won over two hundred thousand pounds.

SYNDICATES AS BACKERS

At Ascot in 1919 the Duke of Portland's Swinley was backed for the Rous Memorial Stakes to win £250,000 by a group of backers, of which the duke, by the way, certainly wasn't one. I believe his Grace had only fifty pounds on his own horse, which started at eight to one.

The backers were a group of city stockbrokers, who simply backed the horse in accordance with a system they were then working.

I shall never forget that race. An old friend of mine, one of the old leviathans of the ring, had terribly overloaded his book against the duke's horse, and at the fall of the flag stood to lose at least £200,000 on the race if the duke's horse won. He could and would have met his liabilities; but he would have been a ruined man.

I watched until the result of the race was no longer in doubt. Swinley at the fall of the flag jumped off, and made the running.

Right up to the distance he looked a winner. Then the favorite, Diadem, came along with a rush, and there was a short, ding-dong fight between the two. Finally, Swinley dropped back, and Diadem won by a couple of lengths.

I saw my friend when Diadem went ahead do a thing I had never known him do before on a racecourse. He took a brandy-flask out of his pocket, put it to his lips, and drained it. His heart was a bit weak, and he kept the brandy in case of emergency.

"I believe," he said to me later, "I would have dropped dead only for that drink!"

Ladies nowadays bet far more heavily than they used to do. I remember at the Newmarket Summer Meeting a couple of years ago having rather an amusing experience with a lady backer.

She was a Frenchwoman, and absolutely ignorant of racing and how bets are made. She said to me that she wanted to have £50 on a horse, whose name I forget, for one of the small races. I laid the bet, and the horse lost.

I thought no more about the matter until a little later the lady, with several of her friends, came up to me, and, handing me the voucher for the bet, said, with a smile, and in rather a triumphant voice:

"I think you owe me two hundred pounds!"

I looked at the voucher and then at the lady.

"I don't think so, madam," I replied. "The horse you backed lost."

"I know he did!" she exclaimed. "I backed him to lose. I was sure he would lose when I saw him in the paddock! He didn't look at all as fine a horse as some of the others!"

BACKED TO LOSE

When the chorus of laughter that her explanation raised among her friends and some others who were listening had subsided, I explained as briefly as possible to the lady that a bookmaker always laid against a horse winning, and that she had therefore lost her money, as anyone who had ever made a bet would tell her.

I eventually refunded this lady her money, for I learnt that what she told me was told in quite good faith, and that she had never laid a bet before.

Here is a story of a big bet that is well known to racing men. For pretty obvious reasons, I cannot mention names. There was a trainer whose methods were dark and devious, and from whose stable horses at intervals won at long odds. Well, this trainer had a horse—I shall call him W—entered for a fairly big race.

Some weeks beforehand the horse was tried in the presence of its owner—a first rate sportsman and as straight as a die—with a stable-companion. As the result of the trial—which, I may say, was absolutely straight—the owner of W almost decided not to run him; but the trainer suggested that he might improve a bit in a few weeks, and that they might as well see how he would shape in the race, anyway.

WON BY A TRICK

The owner let the trainer have his way; but the former told all his friends of the trial, and stated that he was not putting a penny on the horse himself.

Thirty-three to one was laid against W, but so much money went on him a quarter of an hour before the start that at the fall of the flag the odds went to twenty to one against him. W won easily. At the distance he simply seemed to be running away with his jockey. It was a case of W first, the rest nowhere.

No one could understand it. Everything appeared straight and above board. But someone had certainly backed him heavily, and several of the bookies were very badly hit. Fortunately for me, I had only laid W four times.

A year later I heard from W's owner the true story of the race. W's trainer had discovered that the sight of red had much the same effect on W as it has on a bull. Once he had heard from an Australian trainer that a piece of red cloth fluttered suddenly in front of certain horses will drive them almost crazy, and make them gallop for a short distance at double the speed they appear in the ordinary way to be capable of going.

The trainer made this experiment with W when at exercise, with the result that the jockey who was on him was very nearly killed.

The rest was plane-sailing. At the race the trainer had a boy stationed near the distance with a big red pocket-handkerchief, which he fluttered out as the horse went by. Directly W caught sight of the pocket-handkerchief he raced away as if demented, and won easily.

France's Reply On Arms

Home Controversy Prepares The Way For Demands At Washington

BY WALTER LITTLEFIELD

According to Raymond Poincare, late War President of the French Republic, and just now the severe censor of his sometime President of the Council, M. Clemenceau, and the despairing monitor, ex-senatus, of the Briand Government, when France shall be asked to disarm at the Washington conference, her reply should be: "What guarantees for our protection against Germany have you to offer us?"

Ever since President Harding sent out invitations to the Disarmament Conference for November 11 the former President of France has been fearful lest this question shall not be put with sufficient emphasis—with sufficient insistence for an unequivocal, convincing response—and for that reason he has been attempting to enlighten the readers of Le Temps as to the genesis of the unratified Anglo-American-French compact and certain provisions in the Versailles Treaty, which he now considers useless in the light of the presumed vacillating demeanor of the Briand Government under pressure from the British Prime Minister.

The opportunity presented itself to M. Poincare to begin his campaign of education by presenting an interesting array of documents dealing with the Paris Peace Conference, when the diplomatic correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph attempted to defend the British Prime Minister from some of the aspersions cast on him by M. Poincare in an article in Le Temps of Aug. 22. In the attempt to prove these aspersions M. Poincare very naturally deplored the opportunism of M. Clemenceau, which, also quite naturally, finds an enthusiastic defender in Andre Tardieu, French High Commissoner to the United States in 1918, and later one of the French Commissioners at the Peace Conference.

With the close of the controversy in the columns of Le Temps on Sept. 21 M. Poincare then turns to Le Matin, in which he demands that the Allies at Washington give a satisfying answer to the question: "What guarantees for our protection against Germany have you to offer us?"

Everybody knows about the Anglo-American-French compact intended to protect France in case the Versailles Treaty failed to do so, and of its failure to be ratified by the American Senate and the British House of Commons, but through the documents which M. Poincare publishes we learn for the first time the circumstances which brought the compact into being, of the attempts of M. Clemenceau and Lloyd George to supplement it by certain passages in the treaty, which, whether conflicting or not, M. Poincare considers as equivocal as the compact has been proved to be useless. The passages in question are included in Section I., Part XIV., of the treaty, Articles 428 to 432 inclusive.

These articles deal with the occupation of the west bank of the Rhine and its bridgeheads by the allied and associated nations as guarantees that Germany will execute the treaty. Article 428 designates the guarantees; Article 429 restricts them in accordance with Germany's faithful execution of the treaty to fifteen years occupation and then adds:

If at that date the guarantees against unprovoked aggression by Germany [i. e., the treaties of France with England and the United States according to M. Tardieu; German guarantees, according to M. Poincare] are not considered sufficient by the allied and associated Governments the evacuation of the occupying troops may be delayed to the extent regarded as

English Engineering Industry

Editor's Note: Mr. R. A. S. Waters, Far Eastern representative of Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., who is now in Shanghai, was asked by The China Press to prepare a review of the progress made by the English engineering industry since the Armistice, and he has very kindly supplied the following:

By R. A. S. Waters..

THE re-action after the war with its consequent restlessness amongst the working men, and the succession of large and small strikes which ensued from the time of the Armistice onwards, is now, broadly speaking, a thing of the past.

The miners strike this year which paralysed all industry was brought to a conclusion which was satisfactory to all sections of the country, and its termination appears to have marked the end of the period of industrial disturbance in England. The men's leaders have recognised for some time past, and I think the large bulk of the men themselves now recognise, the simple fact that it is not the Capitalists nor Employers who are out to exploit their labor, but rather that it was not possible for the industrial concerns to manufacture goods under wage conditions which made the price of such goods to potential purchasers prohibitive.

My experience of the state of affairs in England only entitles me to speak of the engineering industry and more particularly of the large works of my own company—Sir W. G. Armstrong Whitworth and Co. Ltd.—which with its subsidiary concerns is now one of the greatest of its kind in Great Britain.

In the days following the Armistice, we laid our plans, like many others, for a great revival in the industrial markets of the world. Our plans and the machinery for putting them into operation were there, but were nullified by the high cost of wages and materials, and the many difficult and anxious problems in the delicate task of dealing with post war labor and getting the economics of the workshops re-established on a practical footing, and this without taking into consideration at all the additional factors of foreign exchanges, freights, and other complicated troubles met with in dealing with all overseas markets during that period.

Like the other great manufacturing countries we have undoubtedly been through bad times, and it was with something like a sigh of relief, that we have seen and appreciated the improvement in the situation this year.

In the engineering trades alone, and within the past six months, we have seen the cost of coal, steel and other materials substantially reduced. We have seen the workmen in this, as in other trades, accept reduced wages and also accept the principle, both in spirit as well as in theory, of payment by results. We have seen them turning to their work in the shops with the old time goodwill and consistency, and we have congratulated ourselves that the clouds were rapidly disappearing and that before long the sun of trade and prosperity would again shine on our industry.

Before leaving England for the Far East I spent some time at our different works, and although some of our departments were still showing signs of the trade depression which had been the general fate, yet it was both reassuring and satisfactory to note the great improvement existing over what I had seen six months before when I had last been in England.

The new atmosphere throughout struck one forcibly, and was noticeable in the alertness and bustle, and the evident intention of everyone from the staff downwards that having got a move on they seriously intended to keep it up and speed the progress. The men were working under straight piecework conditions and seemed contented and cheerful, whilst materials from other departments as well as from outside sources were coming in well, and promised dates in connection with our program of manufactures were being adhered to remarkably well.

The condition of our concern can be gauged by what I saw in some of the departments, notably our shipyards where some 32 merchantile vessels, ranging from 8,000 to 20,000 tons deadweight were being built, our locomotive department where some 500 heavy locomotives were going through at the rate of five to seven per week, our machine tool shops which were continually turning out new and improved machines, as well as the volume of work I saw under way in our steel works, motor car works and other sections.

The works of my own company merely exemplify what is transpiring in the engineering trade generally in England, and no doubt remains in my mind that we are now well in the world's vanguard to supply the widespread engineering requirements as and when they are called for and at a price which in comparison with quality of workmanship and materials, will meet and defy competition.

I hope I have conveyed to you some impression of how things are with us engineers in England and my personal optimism in regard to the future. The proof will, I think, be seen very shortly in the terms and quotations which will be received from British firms, and the keenness they will display in obtaining work to keep their factories going now they are getting up speed; and all grades from the management to the men are pulling together with a common end in view.

France's Reply On Arms

necessary for the purpose of obtaining the required guarantees.

It is now known that this passage was interpolated at the urgent request of Premier Clemenceau, who foresaw that the protective treaties with England and the United States might not be ratified. Then Article 430 proceeds to say that if at any time, either before or after the expiration of the fifteen years, Germany fails to keep her obligations the evacuation may be stopped or the territory designated in Article 429 "may be reoccupied immediately by the allied and associated forces." Finally, comes the paradoxical measure in Germany's favor, Article 431:

If before the expiration of the period of fifteen years Germany complies with all the undertakings resulting from the present treaty the occupying forces will be withdrawn immediately.

In explaining his aspersions cast upon the "continued" policy of the British Prime Minister and upon the Briand Government as the inheritors of the "Tiger's" policy, M. Poincare introduces his first array of documents in Le Temps of Sept. 12 with the words: "All the fine hopes that the Allies had given to France are now only so much wind. That is what I wished to say, and that is what I am sorry I have to confirm.

The principal episodes of confirmation—those which may be said to have a bearing upon the question as the War President is striving to have it presented at Washington—are as follows:

March 14, 1919, Premier Clemenceau informed President Poincare, while waiting for President Wilson at the Invalides station, Paris, that Premier Lloyd George had told him that since they had agreed upon the disarming of Germany there would be no further need for troops on the Rhine and that M. Clemenceau had protested against such a decision.

March 17 M. Poincare learned from M. Clemenceau and M. Pichon, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, that on the 14th Mr. Lloyd George and President Wilson had agreed to refuse to France the occupation of the left bank of the Rhine, but at the same time agreed to a short occupation, and offered the aid of the United States and England in case of German aggression. In reply to M. Poincare's observation that while such an offer had its advantages it could not have the effect of the presence of allied troops on the Rhine. M. Clemenceau agreed with him and produced a note which gave the arguments of Marshal Foch in favor of occupation and ending with the clauses which the French Government considered necessary.

April 16, M. Clemenceau succeeded in having the Allies agree on the occupation of the Rhine for fifteen years. This "bastard" resolution President Poincare did not consider sufficient.

FIFTEEN-YEAR PROVISION

April 22, M. Clemenceau told President Poincare at the Elysee that the Allies were firm in their refusal to entertain the Rhine barrier, and remitted to him plans for the military assistance of England and the United States and also on the subject of temporary occupation. Later in the day M. Clemenceau brought a counter-proposal, drawn up at the request of M. Tardieu, which ran:

The delay of fifteen years fixed for the duration of the occupation will begin from the putting into operation of the agreement between the United States, Great Britain and France in view of a guarantee against an unprovoked attack by Germany.

On this point M. Poincare comments as follows:

It will remain regrettable forever that this arrangement was adopted. If it had not been adopted it would have mattered little, but the pact of help was not ratified by America and England. If we had not one stool, at least we might have accepted the offer, whereas today we remain, alas! between the two.

April 28, M. Clemenceau having informed President Poincare that there was a deadlock over the demands of France for guarantees, the latter wrote a note which M. Clemenceau was to transmit to President Wilson and Mr. Lloyd George. In this letter the President of the French Republic declared that as Germany's payments to the Allies would have to be spread over a term of at least thirty years "it would be just and logical that the military occupation of the left bank of the Rhine and the bridgeheads should last as long," and, after incorporating the views of Marshal Foch on the subject, added:

The Marshal considers, in accord with the military authorities, that the Rhine is the only barrier which really assures in the event of a new German attack the common defense of England, Belgium and France. There is, therefore, reason for not abandoning the barrier before Germany has executed all the conditions of the treaty of peace. Beyond this there is something altogether abnormal in dispensing with a pledge before the debt in question has been fully paid.

The period of fifteen years is arbitrary, and it is no less arbitrary to foresee during these fifteen years successive stages of evacuation, while at the end of fifteen years France and her allies will still be creditors of Germany. . . .

It is objected that prolonged occupation will be a heavy military charge. Marshal Foch estimates, on the contrary, that the defense of the Rhine will require fewer troops than the defense of our political frontier. It is necessary to compel Germany to accept the occupation. The Allies will always be free to terminate it if they consider it undesirable. . . .

May 6, the British Prime Minister made a categorical refusal.

June 13 Mr. Lloyd George, finding, according to M. Poincare, that he had yielded too much in the proposed Franco-English and Franco-American pacts, asked M. Clemenceau to adhere to a formula which, while obviously favorable to Germany, at once became unfavorable to France should Germany exert herself to enjoy it by the payment of her debts to the Allies. This formula was communicated to President Poincare by M. Loucheur on June 16 and forms the genesis of Article 431. It reads:

If at a nearer date [less than fifteen years] Germany by insuring all her engagements furnishes proofs of goodwill and satisfactory guarantees, the allied and associated powers will be ready to enter into an agreement in order to fix at a shorter date the end of the period of occupation.

On this formula M. Poincare comments as follows:

That there was always with Mr. Lloyd George, as I said in my previous letter to Le Temps (Aug. 22), the same obsession—to shorten the duration of occupation. The policy which he holds today does not differ from the policy which he held then. But then Mr. Wilson and himself, in order to snatch from us concessions, promised us that we would be helped in case of attack; and today this promise has taken wing like a simple scrap of paper. . . . Have we not, then, a certain right to hold that the consent of France to the reduction of the duration of occupation was vitiated, and so to demand new guarantees?

TARDIEU REPLIES

Evidently considering M. Poincare's article of Sept. 12 to be an indictment of the work of the French peace delegation, M. Tardieu replied to the French War President in an article which occupied three columns in Le Temps of Sept. 13.

In support of his argument about non-ratification of the treaties of guarantee constituting a ground for the prolongation of the occupation, M. Tardieu writes:

The discussion opened with the following dialogue between M. Clemenceau and Mr. Wilson:

"The treaty as it stands," said M. Clemenceau, "satisfies me from the point of view of guarantees. But the future is neither in your hands nor in mine. You have a Senate just as I have a Parliament. Neither you nor I can be sure what they will do in ten years or what they will do tomorrow. If, for instance, the treaties with the United States and Great Britain are not ratified, what will be the situation of France? What subsidiary guarantee will be at her disposal?"

President Wilson replied: "Your observation is perfectly right, but it sets a delicate problem. Let us seek a solution."

The solution was found in the words to Article 429, which begins: "If at that date the guarantee against unprovoked aggression by Germany," &c. M. Tardieu then tells how, in spite of M. Clemenceau's insistence, President Wilson refused the French proposal that the fifteen years' occupation should not begin to count until the guarantee treaties had been ratified and come into force, because President Wilson "found the form of the proposal not sufficiently juridical. Above all, he said, and he was insistent upon it, that it would be used by his adversaries in the American Senate against the ratification of the treaty of military guarantee, to which he was much attached."

M. Tardieu also reaffirms that Article 429 of the Treaty would make the prolongation of the occupation possible, inasmuch as the necessary guarantees in the shape of the treaties of guarantees would be absent.

Evidently, the letter of M. Tardieu gave M. Poincare just the opportunity for which he had been waiting. The controversy had, meanwhile, wandered far from its genesis—from the responsibility of the British Prime Minister, which still, however, obtains, to that of M. Clemenceau and the French delegation—so again M. Poincare dives deep into his documents in order to refute M. Tardieu and to reaffirm his accusations against the apparent shortsightedness of the French delegation in imagining that the interpolated portion of Article 429 offset to the advantage of France the loss of the military guarantee treaties with the United States and Great Britain and Article 431, which gave Germany a clean bill of health, if she complied with all her undertakings before the expiration of the fifteen years. So the war President favors Le Temps with some more documentary evidence on Sept. 15.

He gives in full his views, to which he merely alluded on Sept. 12, about the French proposals, which M. Clemenceau communicated to him on April 22. They were sent to M. Clemenceau on the following morning and were variously headed:

"Texts Relative to the Allies" (three sections), "Military Engagements Imposed on Germany" (two sections), "Occupation" (four sections), and "The Independence of Austria" (two sections), together with observations on "A Combination of the Different Treaties." The last reads in part:

To renounce in fifteen years all territorial guarantees is a grave danger, since, on the one hand, we thus lose all guarantee for the remainder of our credit; and since, on the other hand, Marshal Foch considers that the Rhine line is the only solid military barrier. But the danger would be more terrible still if we abandoned the territorial guarantee in the hope of alliances, and if these alliances were not consecrated by the votes of the American Senate and the British Parliament. We should thus have let go the substance for the shadow.

It is, therefore, indispensable, in any case, that no maximum be fixed as to the duration of occupation before the alliances are definitely concluded in the legal and completed forms by military agreements which render them effective.

The only clear way to take this necessity into account is not to fix in the treaty with Germany any other end to the occupation than the execution of all the conditions of peace and the payment of all the debts, and to agree afterward with the Allies and with the Allies alone, that after the vote of the treaties of alliance and the final drafting of the military agreements one will reduce, if there is ground for doing so and by common accord, the occupation to a period to be determined.

It is evident that if one fixed in the peace preliminaries a period of fifteen years, one would no longer be able to prolong this limit in the definitive peace treaty. . . .

According to M. Poincare, the result of the foregoing note was the French counter-proposal declaring that the fifteen years' period of occupation would begin to run from the date of the entry into force of the Anglo-American-French treaty of guarantees, which, as he has already affirmed, would have satisfied his main objections and those of Marshal Foch.

TEXACO

Texaco Steam Cylinder Lubricants
plus Texaco Service

Many engineers have found that their steam cylinder lubrication problems can be made less difficult by using Texaco Steam Cylinder Lubricants plus Texaco Service.

Texaco Steam Cylinder Lubricants are a highly specialized group of oils of the high Quality Standard associated the World over with Petroleum Products bearing the Texaco Trademark.

There is one oil in this group that will exactly meet the requirements of your engine, and Texaco Service will help you find out which oil this is. Tell us about the type of your engine, temperature, quality of steam, kind of service, point of introduction, etc. We shall gladly prescribe the Right Texaco Lubricant for your needs.

The Right Oil in the Right Place—that is the key to satisfactory steam cylinder lubrication. We have the oils and can show you how to use them.

President To Help Man Who Raised 16 Children On $20 A Week

ONLY these sixteen children remain of the nineteen originally in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Domenic Zacchea. When President Harding saw their picture in a newspaper he wrote Mrs. Zacchea, congratulating her. Her husband makes only $20 a week working for a department store. President Harding promised to help the husband. All of the children were born in the United States. The oldest is twenty-two.

SENTENCED TO JAIL
(Reuter's Service)

The Hague, Nov. 10. — The military defaulter, Groenendaal, whose arrest for evading military service was responsible for the demonstrations on the occasion of the opening of Parliament on September 20, has been sentenced to nine months' military detention, less four months which he has already served.

CHINA AND MACAO AT STANDSTILL IN NEGOTIATIONS

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Nov. 9.—In an interview, Dr. Wu Chao-su, Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs of the Canton Government, referring to the Macao incident, has made the following statement:

"The negotiations between China and Portugal have come to a standstill. Rumor has it that the Portuguese Minister to Peking has arrived at Macao, but no information has been received here from him. Though it is also rumored that he has an intention to submit the Macao case to the Washington Conference, such a local case is not worth taking into serious consideration.

"Furthermore, the region of Macao is within the sphere of influence of the Southern Government.

"Considering that this is the case, it is absurd to attempt to settle the case at the Washington Conference. It is expected, therefore, that the case will ultimately be brought up for negotiation between the Canton Government and the Portuguese Government. If Portugal should resort to means other than this, it would be impossible to bring the case to an amicable settlement."

Obituary

Mr. G. H. WILSON

Military funeral services will be held at Bubbling Well Cemetery at 4 o'clock this afternoon for Mr. George Henry Wilson, who died Thursday at the Isolation Hospital of small pox.

Students' Strikes Leave Officials Cold These days

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Nov. 8.—Students of the school of Railway Administration of the Communications University have been on strike for five days but the authorities have not yet answered their demands. Although they have tried twice to call on the president they have not yet been able to gain an audience with him. This has served to intensify the feeling of the students who now consider that it is useless to make any further petitions.

They now feel that the board of directors of the university is the only responsible body to whom they can appeal and at a recent meeting it was decided that if their demands were not met before November 10 they would petition the Ministry of Communications to restore their school as it existed before its incorporation into the Communications University. The students have further decided according to the reports to issue a declaration to the public setting forth the illegal actions which the authorities of the school are alleged to have committed.

Bandits Slay 15 In Raid On Boat

(China Press Correspondence)

Hochow, Anhwei, Nov. 7.—Fifteen men were murdered and drowned in a raid conducted by a band of armed robbers on the regular night passenger boat which plies between here and Han Shan. The robbers made off with $2800 in cash which they secured from their principal victims, a party of rice merchants who had left their junks here to take the passenger boat to Han Shan.

The rice merchants, whose homes were in Han Shan, arrived here on the night of Nov. 3 on their way back from Nanking, where they had sold their rice. When about ten li from here on the passenger boat, they were awakened by the bandits, who commenced to shoot everyone who attempted resistance. After seizing their plunder from the prostrate forms of their victims, the raiders jumped into sampans and escaped. They left behind them several slain on the boat, while others, who had attempted to escape by leaping into the river, were drowned.

It is believed that the bandits are members of the same gang which descended from the mountains of Han Shan five years ago, raided the yamen there, liberated two of their men, and than robbed the stores, taking $6,000.

Shantung Tuchun Goes After Loan

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Nov. 8.—General Tien Chung-yu, Tuchun and Civil Governor of Shantung, is now in Peking and it is reported that his visit to this city is in the interests of a loan which he is endeavoring to make for the provincial administration of Shantung. In spite of popular opposition to General Tien it is further reported from Chinese sources that he is almost certainly to be appointed Minister of War to succeed General Tsai Chen-hsun.

His recent visit to Paotingfu was supposedly for the purpose of consulting with General Tsao Kun as to his choice in regard to a vice-minister of war. The choice of General Tsao concurred in by the Shantung Tuchun is said to be General Chen Yu-ho, Defence Commissioner of Tientsin.

Another report states that the present vice-minister of war, General Ho En-pu, intends to tender his resignation to the Government as he is going to Japan to attend the grand military maneuvers.

Tokio Money Market Takes Upward Leap

Tokio, Oct. 25.—The money market, which surprised the business world at the close of last week by starting a sudden decline in short money, resumed its soaring tendency yesterday. No manipulation proved effective.

The sudden decline by 5 rin per diem in short money in Tokio Saturday was abnormal and gave rise to many rumors. For one, it was reported that in view of the imminent sale of new government bonds semi-official banks were made to stop absorbing short money in the market and were financed by the Bank of Japan. Its effect was seen in some major lines of commerce at the close of last week.

Yesterday the market parted with that abnormal trend, and call money began again to advance. Yesterday afternoon day to day money shot up to 1.6 sen per diem. Ordinary call loans were obtainable hardly below 2 sen. Over month advances were quoted at 2.3 sen per diem.

Discount rates remained unaltered nominally, but in actual bargains yesterday's prices were 2 to 3 rin higher. It was the general belief yesterday that the month end would witness further advances beyond September's closing prices.

$20 A TON SAVED BY ROAD BUILT BY RED CROSS

(China Press Correspondence)

Fenchowfu, Nov. 4.—One hundred and thirteen miles of new roadway built as a famine relief measure by the American Red Cross, China Famine Relief, were given over to the people of Shansi with benfting ceremony at this place Nov. 2. Beginning at Pingyao the road runs west to Fenchowfu, and with its branches north to Lao Cheng and Yu Ta, Ho, covers thirty miles. From Fenchowfu, the Yellow River Road goes west over the hills to the Yellow River, which it reaches at Cheng Tu. This latter is eighty four miles in length.

After the opening ceremonies, a party in four automobiles started on an inspection trip to the Yellow River. The road climbs over two passes. One of the cars was a bus and carried ten passengers without experiencing any difficulty whatsoever, either on the grades or because of the condition of the surfacing. The last li of the road could not be covered by automobiles as a large viaduct is not quite finished.

CUTS COST $20

The trip back was made in two stages so that a proper inspection could be made. Due to the absence of several culverts, the road has not had much traffic as yet. However, from now on, it is expected that its use will increase to proportions far in excess of that of the old mule trail. The customs records show that the cost of transporting one ton from the Yellow River to Fenchowfu is about $26.50. By use of carts, which were not possible before, this cost can be cut down to $6.50 per ton. Approximately 700 tons per day are hauled over the old trail. Thus the saving by carts would be $5,000,000 a year. Naturally lower freight rates will stimulate trade and cause the opening up of this region.

The Shansi Road Bureau under the leadership of Col. Chao has been active in building new roads in the vicinity of Taiyuanfu. In addition to the 255 miles of road built in Shansi by famine funds, the governor has built 170 miles. With this bureau already in action, it is hoped that the people will take an interest in road upkeep and that in a few years time, these new roads will be in better condition than ever.

Narrow tired carts are not allowed the use of these roads, in view of the fact, that the Red Cross roads traverse a country that has never had the use of any carts, no vested rights are involved by this. Several sets of road tired wheels have been sent to this district by the Red Cross and it is expected that the first transportation companies to use the Yellow River Road will be equipped in this way.

Dr. Boye Again In China For Germany

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Nov. 8.—Dr. A. Boye, the newly appointed minister to China from Germany, is now in Japan on his way to Peking to take over his duties at the German Legation and complete the last step in the resumption of friendly relations between Germany and China. Dr. Boye, is accompanied by his wife. As no word from him has been received at the German Legation the exact date of his arrival in this city is not yet known.

The new Minister has long been connected with the German diplomatic service and has represented his country in both China and Japan. After several years in the consulate at Shanghai, Dr. Boye became in 1906 acting consul general, which was followed by some years of service in Japan. He then returned to Germany where he became a member of a prominent banking firm going to South Africa as a director of his company. Upon the outbreak of the war he returned to Germany.

His next post was that of economical advisor to the German Ambassador in Vienna which he filled throughout the war, returning to Berlin in 1919. With the establishment of the republic he was offered and accepted the position of secretary of state for economic affairs, a post directly below that of the minister of foreign affairs and in that department of the government. It was while in this position that he received the appointment of minister to China.
